PC SHOW '89 – BRING IN THE TRANSLATORS!

Montbuild, organiser of the annual PC Show, to be held at the Earl's Court Exhibition Centre for the second year running, is boasting a record overseas attendance at the jamboree for all things computing.

The show, which will run this year from 27th September to 1st October (the first three days open to members of the trade only), is regarded by many foreign companies as THE place to be seen airing your wares at, and this will be echoed when some of the top American, European and Far-Eastern firms descend on our shores for the five-day bash.

Included in the line-up, at which a record-busting turnout is anticipated, will be such revered names as Microstar, Nybble, The Hong Kong Trade and Development Council (!), Infogrames and Microdigital. How do you get to meet such an esteemed bunch of chaps? Toodle along to the show, that's how!

SAY NO MORE, SQUIRE, SAY NO MORE!

*'Does she go, eh? Does she go?'
'Sorry, I have absolutely no idea what you're talking about.'*

Neither do we, funnily enough. Hardly surprising when you think about it though, the Monty Python team being the way that it is. Mad.

The six-man line-up of (pictured left to right) John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Terry Jones, Graham Chapman, Michael Palin, and Eric Idle, are to star in a computer game. Scheduled for release later this year (to coincide with 'The Best Of Monty Python' TV compilation), Monty Python – The Computer Game will 'retain the original bizarre humour synonymous with Monty Python, while incorporating classic sketches such as The Ministry Of Silly Walks and The Dead Parrot Sketch.

Production of the game is being left in the capable hands of Core Design, and although no price has been set, will probably retail at the £10 (64)/£20 (Amiga) mark.

'Your wife, does she like photography?'

'What, holiday snaps?'

'Could be, could be.'

'Well, yes.'

'Wicked! Yer wicked!'

WANNA GO TO THE STARS?

Or rather, do you want to become one?

That's the offer which Broadword/British Satellite Broadcasting are touting around at the moment with the imminent launch of their satellite-transmitted sci-fi programme, The Satellite Game (see The Word, Issue 50).

The show, which casts the contestant as an intergalactic saviour in the hunt for a world-destroying explosive device, uses the Freescape graphics system devised by

Incentive to give the player the illusion of 'being there'.

BUT – the show needs teams to take part! And this is where YOU come in. If you want to be in with a chance of TV megastardom as well as winning a prize or two, get together with a couple of friends and write to Broadword Television Productions, Anglia TV, Anglia House, Norwich, NR1 3JG.

One rule – you must be aged between eleven and sixteen to be considered.

LORDS OF THE DUNGEON – THALAMUS STYLE!

Keep your eyelids peeled firmly back over the next few months – Thalamus' latest digital masterpiece is under-way.

Sharla is the title, it's to be released on both 64 and Amiga and it's a hybrid of the game styles of Lords of Midnight and Dungeon Master. I've seen a very early version of the game (see screenshot) and was marginally impressed, to say the least.

Whether the programmer can include all the features he'd like to (32,000 views from each direction, sleep option, 512 totally interactive characters, etc) we'll have to wait and see. We'll be following Sharla's progress as it develops. Just don't close your eyes, that's all.

THE FILM-PLANNER FROM HELL IS CONVERTED!

Unsung hero of Newsfield Publications, film-planner Robb 'The Rev' Hamilton, is unplugging his light table at the end of the month to follow a life of religious virtue.

The man of portly frame and God-like intentions brought a touch of faith into an otherwise satanic Film-Planning department during his thirteen-month stint with us, and his departure will be a sad, sad day for his friends and colleagues.

Come on everybody, say a prayer for the lad – he needs his

FIRST STRIKE

Elite, C64 £9.99 cassette, £11.99 disk

The world situation is getting worse by the minute. The enemy is mobilising his land forces, subs are patrolling your coastline and the air force is on red alert. Political higher-ups have decided to go ahead with a first strike and beat the enemy to it. It may start a war, it may prevent one – you're not one to ask questions, you're only an F-16 pilot with a job to do.

Eight possible missions have been lined up for your tour of duty; nuclear subs in the Black Sea, a chemical plant in Libya, stealth aircraft bases in Russia and nuclear power stations in the Middle East are some of the targets on offer. If you're not too sure of your skills there's always the training mission with dummy forces to blow away.

Choose your mission from the duty roster and pick an appropriate mix of weapons. Mavericks and bombs are great for attacks on tanks and naval targets but don't forget Sidewinders for the MiGs and choppers. Cannons are good for all baddies. Going on a long flight sir? We've got a big new fuel tank for you, though ▲ Watch out, Hoggy's flying low again!

Without doubt this is the most technically impressive arcade flying games around, rocketing low over the desert knocks the spots off Amiga Afterburner. Sound FX provide the required amount of explosions and engine roar, but it's gameplay that's the question. The selection of weapons doesn't add that much to somewhat repetitive dodge-and-shoot gameplay. A good arcade game then, but lacking variety for heavy duty home play in my opinion.

▲ Fast flying, F-16 arcade action.

it means leaving behind an ECM system. If you take hits by flak, anything from your engines to your fuel tank can be knocked out. Best to afterburn your way through to avoid any of these problems.

The missions are all pretty long, so you'll have to land at a base before and after you hit the target. Complete the mission and it's eliminated from the hit list, allowing you to pick one of the others.

ROBIN

Anything with planes in it gets my vote immediately and First Strike is everything Afterburner should have been with a lot more to boot. The graphic effect is stunning as oceans, forest, deserts and more flash past at one hell of a speed. The enemy sprites are well defined (the MiGs look and move realistically), the main sprite looks really good and there are some very neat graphic touches throughout – the landing sequence is amazingly smooth. The eight missions are not at all easy, especially the longer ones where weapons have to be sacrificed for fuel. The system of an ongoing battle through the missions is a nice touch but it's the combination of Afterburner-paced action and mission tactics that makes it for me. Very fast-paced aerial combat – I love it!

No plans for an Amiga game.

THUNDERBIRDS

Grandslam, C64 £9.99 cassette, £14.99 disk; Amiga £24.99

It's 2063 and Gerry Anderson's most popular super-marionated puppets are GO! The super-rich Tracy family live on a Pacific Island apparently doing nothing but getting a sun tan. But as all fans know, the truth is very different. Hidden beneath the island is the underground base of International Rescue. Retired industrialist Jeff Tracy and genius scientist licences I've seen in quite some time. The Amiga's digitised pictures work a treat together with atmospheric speech and a wonderful start up screen, although the slow pace of the characters is disappointing compared with the speedy C64 version. The 8-bit game also benefits from a more colourful graphic style and a continuous tune. But on both machines Thunderbirds is an excellent collection of four compelling adventures which should appeal to everyone.

ROBIN

Horatio Hackenback III (AKA Brains) have constructed five Thunderbirds for Jeff's sons; Alan, Gordon, John, Virgil and Scott.

The latest mission for Thunderbirds is split into four sections, separate games really, with the C64 versions each taking up the side of a tape. If you complete a section a password for the next is given.

The first section takes place in the Santa Peublo Mine where two miners are stranded below the surface. Brains has dug into the bottom of the mine with the Mole, while Alan has arrived at the surface. They must first repair a broken water pump, then find the miners and

After UFO this is my favourite Gerry Anderson series and I'm glad it's finally got a computer game that does it to justice. The arcade/adventure format may seem as dated as Supermarionation, but flipping between two characters adds a surprising amount of playability: the puzzles make schizophrenia a necessity, and are generally very good. Gameplay is virtually identical on both machines, with the C64 game being marginally superior as the characters move around so quickly. On the Amiga they're slower, and the graphics are surprisingly sombre, but some excellent digitized intro sequences help compensate.

attach a grab to allow Virgil to lift them out with Thunderbird 2.

In the second part, Alan and Gordon are sent to shut down the nuclear reactor of a crashed submarine. While on the mission fragments of a limpet mine are found. In the next section International Rescue's British agents, Lady Penelope and Parker, attempt to find out who made it by stealing documents from the Bank of England.

The villain responsible for the mines turns out to be IR's old enemy, the Hood. He has announced that unless he is paid four billion dollars he'll launch a nuclear missile at London. In addition it turns out he has film of the notoriously camera shy IR. The film must be recovered, and the missile disarmed.

Thunderbirds is essentially an arcade/adventure, with the unusual feature of being able to flip between two characters. If either of the characters loses too much energy the mission is aborted.

● Another mammoth game from System 3

The Elephant's Graveyard, like the Holy Grail and the fabled Goolu Tribe, has been sought by explorers for centuries. Its true origins have long been lost in the mists of time but it still remains an elusive prize.

Many an adventurer has searched, and many have suffered a horrid fate on their quest, now it seems Tusker's father has gone the way of all who search. Following the discovery of notes in a chest belonging to his father, Tusker realises that his father was on the trail of this semi-mythical place when he disappeared in Africa. Like father, like son, Tusker is no less intimidated by the deaths of previous explorers and promptly sets off for the Dark Continent.

Tusker's African adventure begins near the edges of a desert, deep in uncivilised territory where rattlesnakes, whirlwinds and dehydration are just some of the dangers. Sword-wielding Arabs guard their camps with a lethal zeal, but picking up the gun and ▲ Cor! A monster in a lake – this'll do the local tourist industry no end of good!

▼ Oh mummy, what's in that sarcophagus?

ammunition provides an effective solution to that problem. The main threat in this section however, is the lack of water.

It's almost a relief then, to get into the lush greenery of a nearby bushy jungle. As you'd expect there's lots of wildlife, including crocs, praying mantises, coconut-throwing monkeys, warthogs and giant creatures of a particularly slimy nature.

Breaking through the jungle takes the adventurer into the second load, starting off in a swamp where swamp-'things' await. Keep to the proper trail and you'll soon get firm ground under your feet at a native village. Search the huts for clues and objects to allow you to pass through those mysterious gates in the village square. But why is that Witch Doctor so unfriendly?

Once through the gate things start to get really weird. An icy plateau leads to a primitive jungle where dinosaurs still roam and pterodactyls swoop on intruders. The adventurer has to be getting close to the

How much longer can the Indiana Jones influence keep creeping into games? Tusker is the latest and the best with a well crafted combination of increasingly difficult puzzles and vicious 'B' Movie-style action. Look out for some very neat special effects as well, including the zombies rising from the ground and subsequently falling to pieces when killed, the angry Arabs and the witchdoctor. What made the game for me was the superb shading of the backdrops mixing with equally authentic foreground graphics. The desert looks hot, the jungle has a dark oppressive atmosphere to it, and you can almost imagine the natives beating drums in the village. Indeed the 'drum beat' music gives the game that final polished touch.

Solid arcade adventuring with a wonderful atmosphere to it all, even if it's not totally original in execution.

end. A lost temple sees an end to the Tusker's travels. Within the temple the puzzles begin to increase in lethality with gaping chasms, false walls and moving floors where past explorers are horribly preserved to terrify those who follow. Mummies rule the roost in the stone tombs with man-eating plants and creepers all around. Meet and defeat the final trap (which is astoundingly dangerous) and Tusker may just reach the Elephant's graveyard and his destiny.

▲ Standing outside a cave, Tusker hasn't found any weapons yet.

After the disappointment of Dominator System 3 return to the traditional arcade adventure and continue with what they do best. The way Tusker gets water in the desert is a lovely touch (find out how for yourself!). Tusker himself is a sprite with a real rugged look which wouldn't go amiss in an Indy game. The enemy sprites are equally detailed as well and there's some wonderfully black humour – pick up the gun and the Arabs start getting angry with their swords, start using the gun and they try to decapitate you! With this and Thunderbirds scoring so highly, arcade-adventures seem to be going through a real renaissance. After playing Tusker you wonder why they ever went out of fashion.

▲ Inside the ancient temple – watch out for traps.

I was a little disappointed to see that Tusker didn't have the isometric-style 3-D of Last Ninja, but you can still walk into the screen and the tough Ninja control system has been dropped, thankfully. Tusker's main attraction however, is the depth of gameplay and the quality of presentation. The sound effects are suitably atmospheric with great 'ethnic' music to accompany the adventuring. The feel of true adventuring and exploring comes to life thanks to a very clever use of subtle backdrops with new regions slowly appearing as the player progresses. Enter a hut and you'll see shields on bamboo walls, while the underground caves have a wonderfully dark, deep atmosphere. The game holds together extremely well with gradually more devious traps – in themselves a reward for solving puzzles – some of which are very, very devious indeed.

amiga

An adventurous Amiga version should be out by the time you read this, priced at £24.99

update

PRESENTATION 84%

Typically polished System 3 packaging.

GRAPHICS 91%

Superbly crafted, varied, colourful and extremely atmospheric backdrops complemented by sprites with a surprising amount of detail to them.

Play against a human or computer opponent, selecting three players for your team (each has different characteristics). Apart from the goalie, only one player at a time plays for each team. The others are needed for when he gets 'bumped off' by falling down a hole or smashing into a spiky ball or any of the other numerous death traps.

The ice rink scrolls horizontally, and a radar scanner shows the whole rink and the positions of the players. When a team has scored five goals it's onto the next of 99 progressively more dangerous levels. Lose all three

The simple go-for-goal action in Skateball is initially appealing but ultimately over-simple. Two-player games are most fun but tend to end very quickly as it's too easy for the players to die. With one-player games, the main incentive to play on being to see the later levels which are littered with torturous traps.

I remember playing this on the Spectrum (aaargh!) ages ago so it was quite a surprise that the 64 version has taken so long to appear. Unfortunately it hasn't really been worth the wait. Although retaining a little of the Speccy game's simple playability, it is ruined by some pretty basic graphics: simply animated sprites, bland backgrounds and a far-too-small radar scanner.

TEAM SPORTS

SportTime/Mindscape, C64 £14.99 disk only

The SportTime International Sports Festival comprises five events: Soccer, Water Polo, Volleyball, 4x400m Relay, and Swimming. After selecting the members of your team, you must decide which events to compete in – there's also a practice option.

The rules to all the different events follow the real-life games; for example, in Water Polo the object is to score more goals than your opponent within four quarters of five minutes each (game time).

Once all the games have been played, each of the participating countries compete in the playoffs, with the eight remaining countries (there are 32 to begin with) battling against each other for the coveted Gold, Silver and Bronze medals.

▼ I'd rather do the breast stroke, myself (Double Entendre Captions Inc.).

Poor quality characters, in terms of both definition and animation (check out the fatty footballers in the Soccer section!) and flat, unrealistic sound effects are the order of the day. Couple those with some of the most stubborn gameplay ever to surface on a C64 and what are you left with? A lot of money spent on a badly executed program, that's what.

Urrgh. The first thing that struck me about International Team Sports is the agonisingly long time each section takes to load from disk. If the waiting doesn't put you off playing though, then the appallingly implemented events most certainly will. Cassette users, think yourselves lucky.

SHINOBI

Virgin, C64 £9.99 cassette, £14.99 disk.

▲ The bonus level: throwing stars at the oncoming Ninja.

Ying tong tiddle-eye-po! It's always the same, isn't it? – go out for a quiet, relaxing stroll through the city streets with yer gal, and some oriental gang crawls out of the woodwork, beats you up and runs off with said female companion. Such is the storyline for the first arcade conversion to appear on the relaunched Virgin Games label.

You play the ominous role of a shuriken-wielding but generally charming kinda guy, obviously somewhat upset by the loss of your girlfriend. And what else would a chivalrous dude like yourself do but set out to find her. What follows is screen after screen of out-and-out arcade action taken from the hit Sega coin-op.

You must walk along a horizontally-scrolling street, wiping out the bad guys and collecting new weapons when available. But wait! Yours is not the only pal who has been abducted! for, on each level, are a number of other hostages who require

ROBIN

I was pleasantly surprised when Shinobi came in because I hadn't thought much of the original coin-op. The C64 game, by contrast, is superbly presented and highly playable. The skill level is set just right and the end-of-level opponents are some of the best I've seen in a long while. In fact the game is extremely well polished, with Virgin combining good colours with fine graphic detail. My only reservation is that, like the coin-op, there might not be that much variety – although the bonus section is very good. In short an excellent conversion.

assistance. Most of these are guarded by a booma-sword-wielding fat baddie, who will do his level best to catch you unawares and lop off your vitals when his sword swings back to him.

After every second level you are greeted with the awesome sight of an enormous end-of-stage monster which, after many hits to his most vulnerable bodily area (which you're left to find for yourself) opens the gate to the next street – but not before you are given the chance to tackle a bonus stage; your arm is shown at the bottom of a first-person perspective 3D screen, onto which leap ninja attackers. Take them out with your shurikens before they jump across the three wooden bridges and reach you.

RANDY

I recall with fond memories standing in the arcade up home, pouring obscene amounts of ten pence into the local Shinobi machine – I still do at odd times. So imagine my delight when this conversion appeared on my desk, begging me to load it up. And you know, I'm glad I did, for C64 Shinobi is an extremely faithful representation of the original. Every aspect of the game has been packed into the 64 without losing any of its polish – even the sound effects bear a strong resemblance to their coin-op counterparts. and just wait until you see the bonus stage – it's so authentic, at times I believed I was playing the arcade machine! Get this game – it's a bit good.

▼ Oh crikey, my bottom's on fire! I knew I shouldn't have eaten that chicken vindaloo last night.

► Over the level crossing, time for a quick doughnut, I think.

Domark, C64 £9.99
cassette, £12.99 disk;
Amiga £19.99

● Banish those Hill Street
Blues with Tengen

Officer Bob's a friendly sort of chap, but he's also a cop patrolling his beat with some tough arrest quotas to fill for his bonus pay. Everyday Bob gets a new quota, each one bigger than one before. To fill it Bob must arrest a set number of litterbugs, drunks, hitch-hikers and such like. These aren't likely to resist arrest, but to find them you need an eagle eye and a good patrol pattern in a very big city.

Occasionally you'll get an All Points Bulletin which means a criminal a notch above your average lager lout is on the loose. Keep your eyes peeled for a master criminal such as Sid Sniper or Freddy Freak and standby for a fast chase. If you catch the felon it's back to the police station for a spot of interrogation. Needless to say the criminal has the right to a

This is great. The feeling of satisfaction when you bang one of the 15 most wanted felons behind bars is immense. Chasing them is certainly tough, whether you're bashing into their car or blasting away with your gun you have to be careful of innocent bystanders. It's really good how you can use donuts to extend your time limit to look for felons, rather than just filling your quota of litter louts. Surviving 32 days on this Police Academy police force is one tough task, but I reckon I'm going to persevere until those tough streets are safe for women, children and yes, even hedgehogs!

▼ Officer Bob drives down streets filled with criminals. There's just no respect for the law.

Tengen coin-ops are always great to play and the conversions of APB bring home the humour that really made the coin-op for me. After C64 Xybots Tengen have got right back on track with good presentation and strong gameplay – it's great to see that right from the start you've got freedom of movement to explore and pursue two types of objective (quota or APB suspects) at the same time. While the Amiga game has that faithful cartoon look, the 64 game edges ahead with a slightly easier to control car and some excellent car graphics (I personally found the side graphics at times a little dull though). Put this one on your Most Wanted list now!

▲ Bob moves over to arrest another criminal.

lawyer, to remain silent etc... but if you can get a confession out of him – before the chief arrives at the cell – you can forget about quotas for the rest of the day! So when the scene switches to the police cell waggle your joystick as fast as possible to shake some sense into the fiend.

While back on the beat you can arrest an offender by touching him (or her) with the Steering Wheel cursor which is fixed just ahead of your police car. Press fire and the siren should force him to pull over. Hardened criminal may ignore the siren for a bit – APB offenders need to be rammed off the road – and later on in the game you'll need a gun to shoot up their cars. But if you shoot an innocent bystander, or crash into a vehicle with the siren off, or fail to meet a quota, then you'll gain a demerit point. Collect enough demerits and you're kicked off the force.

Tracking down all those criminals can get a bit tiring, so why not stop off for a doughnut to extend your time limit? Then there's the money bags which you can pick to boost your revenue, very useful for the Speed Shop where you can buy better brakes, radar, turbocharge your engine and top up your gas tank.

This is one of those rare recent coin-ops that concentrates more on playability than graphics, packing in lots of cartoon humour too. Thankfully most of the playability has been preserved by Domark, resulting in two superb conversions. The ability to wander around such a huge city is excellent, and if the time limit seems a little tight you can always increase it by visiting the donut shop. Similarly you can uprate your car by spending cash at the garages, though zooming around at top speed is always a bit dangerous on busy road. Both versions play very well, but the C64 game makes better use of the host machine to nab a well-deserved Sizzler.

ters. Their suitably suicidal objective is to blast their way through a huge underground complex made up of around 50 levels which then repeat. Hordes of robots roam about these 3-D levels and when shot often leave goodies such as coins, add-on weapons and keys. At the end of each level there's a shop where you can buy added zap power (to

ROBIN Well I never thought I'd see the day when a 64 game looks less colourful than the Spectrum equivalent, it's effectively monochrome! Memory problems forced the programmer to compromise but it's not only graphics which are dodgy; the characters have leaden feet and wobble around at a staggeringly slow rate. The problem of repetitive levels is even more prominent in this version than it was in the arcade and Amiga version. With little in the way of variation in the gameplay the endlessly similar mazes prove the final nail in the game's coffin.

▼ Searching for treasure in the Aztec section.

ROBIN With Xybots and now Aaargh! this isn't a good month for coin-op conversions. Any hope of a competent conversion quickly vanishes upon sight of the main sprite and his 'movement' (maybe the dinosaurs all died of embarrassment), add to this some very dodgy collision detection and overwhelming odds of dying and it all falls to pieces. The ultimate in entertaining visuals, though, has to be the matchstick men milling about when houses fall down - Lowry must be spinning in his grave!

decided enough is enough, and have gone in search of the Roc eggs. You take play one of the monsters, either an ogre or a dragon, stomping through twelve cities, flattening buildings to collect eggs, massive hamburgers and humans. Giant hornets and cannons lob projectiles. When you collect a egg you must fight the other, computer-controlled monster to get back to your treasure cave.

STU Amiga Aaargh! lost a lot when the two-player mode was removed from the home computer version. The C64 game also suffers from this, and overly simplistic gameplay, but the main fault is the difficulty level. Manoeuvring your monster around village huts while dodging giant insects is frustrating and repetitive. For very patient and forgiving fire-breathing monsters only.

THE BUTLER DOES IT AGAIN!

Once again Activision have jumped into the licensing business in a big way in preparation the Second Coin-op Conversion War this Christmas. The big gun in Activision's arsenal this time around is the mammoth Sega coin-op, Power Drift.

ROBIN HOGG takes a look at how programmer Chris Butler is set to 'achieve the impossible'.

Following the massive success of Out Run and Afterburner in the arcades even Sega jumped onto their own bandwagon in 1988 to create the ultimate rough-ride racing game. Power Drift combined all the graphic techniques and sheer speed that Sega could muster for one rollercoaster of a ride which dominated the arcade scene.

For the 64 version Activision signed up one of the most accomplished coin-op convertors around: veteran programmer Chris (Ghosts 'N' Goblins, 720°, Space Harrier, Thunder Blade, Com-mando) Butler.

How on earth did you get involved in tackling the 64 conversion of this monster coin-op?

Well, at the time, around early '89 I was engaged in freelance work for US Gold. I'd finished Thunder Blade and was being offered Ghouls 'N' Ghosts when the software manager for US Gold, Charles Cicil, suddenly left to join Activision, poaching me in the process. The license for Power Drift surfaced soon after - I wanted a big title to work on and it was all that was available. Thus in February I was given the task - the end of September being the deadline with a penalty clause written in of £250 lost for every week it over-runs.

When you first went about tackling the game what were your priorities? Something would have to be thrown out from the start, but what? Don't you feel it's pushing it possibly too far?

Well the slanting road effect as the car skids round corners has had to go, it all depends on memory which is as ever very tight indeed. If I've got the memory then it will go in.

I like to tackle the Sega coin-ops head on, to my mind there's no other way about it. I've always believed that if anything's possible then it's worth having a go.

Although I have to compromise almost all the time with my games, deciding what can and can't be done, I always try to capture what it is about the subject matter that attracts the gameplayer.

And this is multi-load, right?

No, no. [My jaw drops upon hearing this]. I've weighed up the pros and cons of it all and I wanted it to be fast paced and easy to get into which always points to a single load. Why should I write fast games where the player has to wait for the multiloader?

It's even better appreciated if you can squeeze the game into one load. Trying to work in the restrictive memory of 64K has been hard: I've run out of memory quite a few times but at least I've had a lot of practice.

How is the game being structured (without giving away any trade secrets)?

At this moment it's made up of 32K of graphic code including all the track data, bends, length of straights, position of hills and so on.

After this comes 20K of actual code and after that comes 6K odd of music. I don't do the music myself but give a set amount of memory to Dave Lowe who's done sterling work for Activision. I've already had to cut down his allocation but he seems happy enough with 6K. He's concentrating on one main theme to capture the spirit of the game. A summer theme? Yes, probably. Although I haven't heard anything yet.

After all this I have around 1K to 3K for emergency backup purposes—sorting out colour buffers, handling screen memory and so on. This memory allocation is all rather flexible but at the moment it's basically a case tidying up of code.

For development I use an old Amstrad PCW using Word Star to edit the source files. Code assembly is performed using X-ASM and luckily takes no more than a few minutes as the code is downloaded from the PCW. I have my own customised graphics designer which can scroll backgrounds as well and create very large multiplexed sprites.

Graphics have always been important in Sega games—when it comes to the conversion have they been first priority or has it been gameplay?

The graphics came first with the track routines following. The gameplay is usually the last thing to go in and is very easy to implement, change the speed of a car here, the gravity of a bend there—no problem.

It's not been a problem either to incorporate the spinning car effect (when the car hits an object and spins off the road)—it's cheating really but I simply shift characters left or right depending on the direction of spin.

The graphics are made up of 230 images based around 23 objects. The main sprite of your car and the rival cars takes up 16 of those 200 odd images and incorporates the distant cars and the positions of turning cars, climbing cars and the like.

I was meaning to spend two to three weeks on the graphics but it turned out to be six weeks.

What was the toughest part of the conversion? Many late nights?

To answering the second question first. Well, yes there's plenty of the old 'burning of the midnight oil' as most of my time programming is at odd hours—a mid-day wake and afternoon just doing general things is followed by a late night session from around 8pm through to about 3am.

There's been one late night till 7am session which involved getting the clouds of smoke on the wheels of the car just right but otherwise it's been fairly straightforward coding.

The main problem (the lack of memory aside) is the track; getting it to move correctly, curve smoothly and creating the ride-over effect of the hills. Yes, as in the coin-op the car doesn't move, instead the road moves to either side.

Trying to keep the side graphics parallel to the road edges has been a task as well. I'm storing the track shapes in memory with individual track curves and hills all in there—a 3-D line routine is applied to the shapes to create the 3-D effect.

Gaps have appeared at the edges of the screen and I've filled these in with set character blocks. The speed of it all hasn't been a problem as the sprites are tracked in character mode. Certain objects come past perpendicular to the road, like the bridges. It's a bit of a cheat but it works.

The actual illusion of movement and track algorithms have turned out better than I thought. I've copied the arcade method but the Sega programmers are very lucky as all the hard work has been done for them already. Overall I'm pleased with the result.

You've obviously drawn on past experience for this conversion.

One of the major criticisms of previous games like Thunder Blade has been the wobble of the oncoming 3-D graphics and I've gone out of my way to eliminate that problem.

Other problems that have been corrected have been the half-on sprites of Space Harrier which was basically printing a character block on screen and just flashing it past.

I've used a high level of interrupts in Power Drift to keep speed up and get around the problem of it not being a sequential game like Thunder Blade—after all you can choose any course you want which makes my preplanning difficult.

The techniques in use now are nearing perfection and are about the most efficient I can get on the 64 now. It's approaching the limits but then again they've always said that.

Have you been following the coin-op and computer scene recently? Make us sick and tell us whether you had the Power Drift machine for 'research' purposes.

No, I don't often get the chance to visit the arcades. When visiting my parents in Southend, which is an arcade player's paradise, I do see them then.

I find Capcom's Strider very impressive and the programming techniques behind Hard Drivin' are excellent although the game itself can be tedious. I did have the Power Drift machine for around four months but that's gone onto another developer.

Are YOU interested in 16-bit?

It's all a matter of finding the time. I like the 3D polygon effects of 16-bit programs nowadays but again I don't have the time to buy (and play) games. I've worked with the 64 for quite a few years, learnt a lot with it and there's a good few years of 64 games to come. Yes, 16-bit is interesting but there's life in the old dog yet.

Five years on, has it all been worth it?

Undoubtedly. I still love writing games; it's a boy's dream after all, and me straight out of school. A dream career even if I'm not incredibly wealthy.

I'm now committed to buying a house and settling down. I don't intend to be writing games when I'm 50 but it's been worth every moment.

Well, what can I say? The new Olivier? Perhaps, certainly a new talent has been born at Ludlow Festival. A scintillating performance by Richard Eddy won a standing ovation . . . or so I'm told by the man himself who 'lost' the video recording of it.

But in ZZAP! everyone can be a star, just send in your letter (and photo even) and we'll promote you to the masses!

This month's main feature seems to be that evergreen subject; piracy.

A PIRACY EXPERT?

Dear Lloyd,
I recently telephoned Trilogic about the Expert Cartridge – specifically about the upgrades for it, but I shall let that pass. They informed me that on the 1st of August, the Expert would no longer be sold due to the new regulations regarding computer copying devices.

To be perfectly honest, I find the banning of such devices sickening, for several reasons:

- 1) That any government feels it can repress knowledge by banning it is completely erroneous.
- 2) That the other facilities offered by these products (machine code monitor, freeze and examine, edit sprites etc in situ), which are incredibly useful aids to the production of legal software, are just to be thrown away with the rest of the product.

3) My final, and most annoying reason: THAT PIRACY MUST BE SO DESPERATELY WIDESPREAD AS TO CAUSE THE USE OF SUCH DESPERATE MEASURES.

I think it says something about British Computer Users that something so drastic has to be done. And by a government that was only forced to bring in the Data Protection Act to bring us into line with the rest of Europe!

It is the old adage about the few spoiling it for the rest. To deprive the users of the power of these devices simply because they can make a back-up of what is in memory? It is unthinkable. In Germany, piracy is illegal, as is hacking. And yet nothing has come out of those laws except that the hackers have adopted handles bearing no resemblance to their real names, broken into software, and distributed hundreds of counterfeit copies. Or in the case of main frames, injected viruses bearing this handle. Before anyone wonders why I call myself Thunderdog, I shall tell them. I am not a hacker in the modern sense. In the old sense, I am a hacker: one who would rather write their own software than use someone else's. But I use the Expert! Sure, I use it to debug my software – correct non-declared labels, bodge together pre-assembled files from disc. I also use it to backup software.

What's on my 'collection of instruction-less black discs' then? (to quote James Newcombe's letter in ZZAP! 52) Wizball, Seuck, Gauntlet, Trap, Head Over Heels, Cluedo, Monopoly, Scrabble, need I go on? Look in my box of ORIGINAL cassettes, with instructions – Wizball, Seuck, Gauntlet, Trap, Head Over Heels etc etc . . .

One thing I have heard is done by some hackers, and I think it is quite a good idea, is to break into software, copy it, make only the ONE copy, and send it to the author with details of how it was done. This won't be popular, but, so long as the hacker can be trusted, it can provide a free security consultancy service. (The same kind of thing Prestel often do – open out a few lines as 'demo' lines, and wait for the hackers!)

If piracy is to be stopped, then a good deal of effort in security is required by programmers. I intend to form a group – with newsletter – dedicated to that end. (If anyone is interested, please contact me. Hackers be warned – don't join – I have ways of weeding you out! Before I finish this letter and the typist has to go and cool their fingers in the fridge, I would like to ask whether you know of any plans to release a game based on the series 'Sledge Hammer'?

In the words of the prophet 'That's all folxx'.
Thunderdog, Beverley, North Humberside.

Piracy is desperately widespread, hence the new law. Whether the new law does ban devices such as the Expert Cartridge is in fact unclear. One device, the Blitz lead for the Atari ST, is to remain on sale because its makers claim it's primary use is not copying software but copying disks twice as fast as normal. Copying software, it's argued, is a misuse of the device. Indeed Bob Hay of FAST (Federation Against Software Theft) has said devices which have many uses, not merely copying, are not banned. However, Trilogic and many other companies are unwilling to risk being taken to court under the act. Until someone is, the specific meaning of the act will be uncertain.

THE SUPERB 64 (AND MAG!)

Dear Lloyd,
I have always classed ZZAP! as the best Commodore 64 magazine around. Since the Amiga has become so widely available many magazines seem to have taken a preference to reviewing Amiga software. However, you have retained your high standard of fair reviews. I think yours is the only Commodore 64 magazine worth buying any more.

During July, in one other Commodore 64 mag only three C64 games were reviewed (excluding the budgets) while the Amiga had a much larger amount. Those who bought this certain magazine wasted over a pound to read a mag which could have been the July issue of The One! It's just not fair and this is why ZZAP! is the only C64 mag I'm going to buy from now on.

Now that ZZAP! has got it's four new reviewers I hope the standard of your mag – for the sake of us poor, neglected C64 owners' doesn't drop – or I'll go mad!

Of course I agree that the Amiga is a much more powerful machine (I've played on my friend's); but this is no reason to neglect the C64.

In my rating the C64 is one of the best computers around!
'Give Us Another Beer' John, Somewhere in The UK.

In our rating, too, the C64's superb.
LM

NO SNIFF OF VIC

Dear Lloyd,
RE: CU, 64 and ZZAP. The Vic-20 has been given the space it deserves in Commodore User, ie none. Vics are dead, who wants to read about them? Oh, and if ZZAP! calls it self any kind of Commodore mag it will follow the 64 until (like the Vic-20) it ain't worth it any more. And that won't be for a long time yet.

By the way, next time you have a free tape, how about an Amiga disk as well (like CU did awhile back). I don't appreciate paying 50p for a tape I can't use.

Daniel Besser, Milton Keynes, MK2 2NW.

Putting a disk on the front cover would boost the price a lot more than a cassette, but if we have enough pleading letters for me to drop on the management's desks, who knows what'll happen?
LM

Dear Lloyd,

Next, a few points:-

2) Most of us aren't glued to keyboards and joysticks all the time – we do go to the pics and hire videos occasionally. So a video/movie review column would be nice.

Since you changed the reviewing system, I thought you'd have changed the awards too. The CONVERSION FACTOR is good, but I've always thought the implementation of the SILVER MEDAL is wrong. Tetris on re-release would have got a Gold Medal had it been under the pre-budget era's reviewing system, instead of a Silver under the current system. Would Armalytix get a Silver at £1.99? (Probably, at 99% overall, too!) No, I didn't think so. So why shouldn't £1 or £2.99 games get GMs where deserved? Shameball and Party Control got a full 2 pages each, so why

Finally, has anyone else noticed that their 64 copy of Speedball is bugged? If I switch on for the first time in a day, when the transformer is cold, it always bugs up!! What I do to remedy this is to let the transformer warm up for about half an hour, and it usually works. I should know – after a 50-week league as Lacata, I won ALL 50 games scoring 500 goals with a final score of 7500 (work it out – 100 points per win, 20 per draw, 5 per goal) – a clear 3870 points of Yela. Think that it's a fix? Look at the printout . . . Oh, by the way, what WAS the longest list for the BLASTEROIDS comp?

From the top, Phil . . .

2) Video and movie reviews in ZZAP!? With all the games we've had flooding into the offices this month I doubt we're ever going to have the space!

No reviewing system is totally fair, and I agree games like Tetris are now missing out on Gold Medals. On the whole however, budget games are inferior to full-price but, because of their price, are marked more generously – hence the Silver Medal. Rambo, for example, could never have got 96% at £9.95. And on the subject of Bronze Medals, call me an old fuddy-duddy but I'm don't think there's any call for changing the Sizzler rating yet.

PIRACY

Personally I don't mind it, there are good and bad points. Anyway I have several Amiga copies and I bought R-Type, and Kick Off. I really don't want to damage these games so I decided to make a backup of them. Now this is the way (well part of it) to stop copying. They both have brilliant protection. Amazingly another Anco product has little or no protection! Anyway piracy is because of high prices and the prices (yawn!) are because of pirating.

Simon Liu, Surrey.

Sadly I must agree with you that the most effective way to stop piracy is via technical means, rather than 'educating' pirates such as yourself about the harm done to the industry. Still, I think you're mistaken to assume the effects of piracy are compensated for by higher prices. There's only so far you can peg prices, and £24.95 in no way makes up for the vast number of pirated games. If there was less piracy games would not only be cheaper, but better as programmers could afford to spend much more time on them. And then there's the fact not everyone's a pirate - I'm not, and I certainly feel irked I have to pay the high prices caused, in part, by pirates. Also there's first time buyers discouraged by high software prices.

LM

Another month, another RRAP. I hope to receive lots of letters next month, so we can go back up to four pages after Randy nicking one for his special tips section this ish. Needless to say I consider myself a broad-minded chap, so feel free to write on pretty much anything even vaguely linked to the Commodore world. The address is LLOYD MANGRAM, ZZAP! RRAP, PO Box 10, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1DB. Unbiased reviews of Mr Eddy's performance will be especially welcome.

ARTHUR

Infocom, Amiga £29.99

You are Arthur. Not Arthur Fowler, Arthur Scargill or even Arthur I'vegotakippers tuckupmyassorted edsocks. No, as just plain

'Arthur' you're the rightful heir to the English throne, and the hero in Infocom's interpretation of the famous legend.

It has been many years since King Uther has died and so far no-one has been able to pull the famous sword from the stone to become his rightful heir. It has even got to the point where the people are willing to let a usurper, King Lot, take the throne.

As Arthur, you start the adventure at night in the churchyard where the sword in him - his coronation is in three days time.

A visit to Merlin's cave results in him giving you the ability to transform yourself into an owl, badger, salamander, eel or turtle. You might've preferred a nice, shiny suit of armour and a good horse, but Merlin's Merlin and it wouldn't be wise to argue. You can change into an animal as often as you like, but never directly from one animal to another (you must become human again first) and never in public - it would freak people out!

Exploring the surrounding countryside reveals a great many locations ranging from the village tavern to bogs, woods, a lake (as a turtle or eel you can swim beneath the surface), and King Lot's castle. Plenty of characters, both friendly and hostile, can be the stone is located. You know that King Lot has imposed a curfew and you'll be thrown in jail if caught, but you were compelled to try to remove the sword. Of course, being the rightful heir, you succeed in pulling it out (no oo-ers here please) whereupon Merlin materialises and, before disappearing again, tells you that you're not yet worthy to claim the throne and must first gain a hundred chivalry, experience, wisdom, and quest points.

You walk into the town square. The churchyard lies to the north, and the castle to the east. To your south you see the entrance to the town's only tavern, and to the west is the village green.

But no sooner than Merlin disappears than King Lot's soldiers march into the church to remove the sword and stone. In the morning King Lot shows a copy of the sword to the gathered villagers, claiming it is the magic sword and that he must now be crowned High King. You must work quickly if you are to stop spoken to and asked questions. The village idiot isn't too helpful - though he says he can peak into the game's machine code when you're gone!

Most of the problems encountered revolve around transforming into different creatures - for instance, to go down a hole in the ground you must be the badger, while as the owl you can fly high above the land. Surprisingly, as an eel you can even talk to a kraken in the lake. However, you are not allowed to carry objects when in animal form and this obviously causes more than a few problems. It can also be frustrating finding somewhere to change, there's never an empty phone box when you want one!

As in other recent Infocom releases, there's an in-built hints facility, accessed by looking into a magic crystal. The typically polished Infocom presentation also includes various display modes: graphics, map, inventory, score, and text.

With the great puzzles, some attractive graphics and a superb vocabulary and parser, plus the odd touch of humour, Arthur has all the ingredients to make a first-class adventure. A must for all Infocom fans.

MYTH

Magnetic Scrolls, C64 disk only – available as part of Official Secrets package: £19.95

The Official Secrets adventure club has been running a few months now and is apparently doing very well. For £19.95 you get six bi-monthly issues of the club magazine: Confidential, Gnome Ranger by Level 9 (or a special surprise alternative), use of The Adventure Helpline and Adventure Contacts, automatic membership of the Special Reserve Software Club (giving discounts on loads of games), and of course the exclusive mini-adventure reviewed here – Myth specially written for the club by Magnetic Scrolls.

In this light-hearted look at the Greek mythological world, you play the Sea God, Poseidon, and, guess what, you can't swim!

Mucking about in heaven is an easy life and you have a great time going to riotous parties. So when your brother Zeus invites you to his temple-warming party you accept on the spot. When you arrive everything seems to be normal, with lots of food and drink to indulge in, but then Zeus decides to make a very serious speech about the rise of Christianity and how the Greek gods should prove their superiority by each performing a difficult task.

He hands you a piece of paper with your task on it: to find Hades' fabled Helmet Of Invisibility. With a flash you're transported to the gates of hell. Looking around you spot your first problem – a huge nine-headed Hydra guards the gates and isn't going to let you past. Armed only with a shield and trident (unfortunately not of the leaves one in no doubt as to the nature of this place. Parched and barren landscape sprawls ravenously in an nuclear variety) you decide not to rile him and instead explore a garden to the east where a frolicking lamb and marble altar are to be found (I wonder what must be done here?!).

The only other route takes you into a deep swamp (aw no, you can't swim!) where an old James Bond trick can help you survive. Get through this and you reach the infamous River Styx, full of dead-souls making the journey to hell. A ferryman and Death himself make an appearance here along with a perplexing puzzle concerning transporting six keys over the river.

It didn't take me too long to make a fair bit of progress in Myth as the puzzles aren't that difficult to solve, although fine for beginners. Experienced adventurers will probably find it a bit easy although they'll have plenty of fun reading the humorous text and admiring the beautiful graphics which appear every few locations (these can be swapped for small mono cameos to quicken play). Then there's a typically refined Magnetic Scrolls parser which accepts multi-command sentences. One thing missing (although most won't need it) is HELP – as members can always phone the Official Secrets Helpline!

Although I wouldn't exactly recommend forking out 20 quid just for the game, Myth is a great freebie incentive for those interested in joining the only professional adventure club in Britain.

RANDY SAYS – TIPS OOT FOR THE LADZ!!!

SPECIAL EXTENDED VERSION!

You asked for it, so you've got it. Arguably the largest selection of tips in ANY magazine. Ever. It's took a while to compile, and there have been all sorts of complications, but it's here.

What will you find in the following pages? What you'll find are tips, pokes, listings, maps and solutions; something old, something new, something borrowed (I scrounged the Rick Dangerous map from my good friend and CRASH counterpart, Nick 'Pie' Roberts) and something blue. Wait a mo, there's nothing blue here... BUM! There. A blue word.

I hope you enjoy utilising these tips as much as I enjoyed pulling them all together for you. There's something for everyone – from reprints of some of the best tips for the best budget rereleases, to amazing new cheats for the very latest titles, to the most up-to-date level maps available, to detailed player's guides of recent titles you only packed up the other week because you got hopelessly stuck.

Spare a thought for all those guys who submitted all those cheats; shed a tear for those previous ZZAP! tipsters who took time out to present them to you. And give me a massive round of applause for bringing you this booklet. Turn the page, marvel at the hints you find and take the time to contemplate the history being made here.

READ AND ENJOY!

ZAK McKRAKEN AND THE ALIEN MINDBENDERS – PART TWO (US Gold/Lucasfilm)

Now you know why the second part of this solution has taken such a long time to appear! Thanks to everyone who wrote in with the missing half, believing that I'd lost it (I hadn't, honest!)

After reaching the spaceship, take off your hat and nose glasses. Ring the bell beside the door. Give the guitar to the King or, if you filled in the application form at the Phone Company office, give him the fan-club card.

Once escorted outside, enter again to the far right and read the Lott-O-Dictor. Jot down the number shown, return to the coloured buttons and push them in the sequence CYAN, PURPLE, YELLOW, PURPLE. Step over the line and be ready to open your parachute as soon as you start falling. Once in the water, use the kazoo to summon the dolphin. Use the blue crystal on the dolphin and direct it underwater. Swim to the right until you come across seaweed covering a rectangular tunnel. Pick up the seaweed and then the GLOWING OBJECT. Give the object to Zak then use the To Zak command – one of the aliens will appear and transport you to the detention cell. When Zak's IQ drops to three, go grab a snack from the fridge (literally!).

When the alien lets Zak loose, walk to the pawn shop. Enter when Zak has enough IQ to remember how to use a door! Buy a Lotto ticket, and enter the number you saw on the spaceship. Catch a plane to Miami and then to Cairo or wait in San Francisco to win the lotto first.

(i)

Going to Zak's bedroom and ringing the aliens on 2883 can be fun (as long as you got the number previously from the Phone Company).

Once at Cairo, move right to the Sphinx and find the leg with the strange markings on. Draw the illustration (i) with the yellow pencil. An opening should appear. Go through the door and enter all other doors with a sun above above them and finally the one with friendly eyes. Once inside, push the MIDDLE BUTTON, the RIGHT BUTTON then the LEFT BUTTON. A map should appear. Use the yellow crayon on the wallpaper map.

Switch to Melissa, get boombox and tape from the spaceship and move her in front of the craft. Switch to Leslie and give vinyl tape, flashlight and ladder to Melissa. Move Melissa to the Great Chamber, then to the first door. Use the vinyl tape on the DAT tape, and the tape in the boombox. Turn on the boombox and select record. Use ladder on pedestal, then pick up the crystal sphere. Pick up ladder, turn on torch and enter. Use Face Map to get to the Map Room. Read maps, then take Melissa to the second door. Turn on boombox and select play. Enter the door at the passage's end, pick up ANKH and go to the third door. Use the boombox as before and go down to the Protection Room. Use ankh in panel, pick up keys (the big one crumbles to dust) and go back to the first door.

Switch to Zak, get out of the Maze by using the Sphinx Map, and go to the airport. Fly to Kinshasa and give the yellow crystal to Shaman. Use crystal and go to bottom-left dot. Pick up CANDELABRA. Put on wetsuit, airtank and fishbowl. Use the duct tape on fishbowl to make it airtight. Use the yellow crystal and go to Mars Face. Once there, use the yellow crayon on the strange markings (ii) to open the door. Making sure you have the Face Maze Map to get you out, make sure the door is open. Take all three to the girls' ship and use oxygen valve.

(ii)

Take Zak to the monolith and buy four tokens and Leslie one. Get each person to use their token on the tram before it leaves. Take Leslie to the pyramid first. Use broom on sandpile. Switch to Zak. Take him to the pyramid and use bobby pin sign on keyhole. Switch to Melissa. Walk to the pyramid, down the passage and in the doorway. Switch to Leslie. Go down passage, through the door and push the feet of the Sarcophagus. Switch to Melissa. Do the same. Switch to Leslie. Move away from the Sarcophagus. Switch to Melissa. Use the golden key in the yellow box. Switch to Zak. Move to the crystal. Switch to Melissa. Being as fast as possible, push button. Switch to Zak. Pick up crystal. Use the yellow crystal and go to the dot on the right side of the map.

Use the glowing object on the base, use the candelabra on the glowing object and use the blue, white and yellow crystals on the crystalabara. Pull the small lever on the left. Switch to Annie. Fly to Cairo. Walk left to the pyramid and enter. Walk right to the door then left and up the stairs. Pull lever then pull the first switch. Switch to Zak. Pull the switch on the right.

YOU'VE COMPLETED THE GAME AND FOILED THE PLANS OF THE ALIEN MINDBENDERS! SIT BACK AND WATCH THE IMPRESSIVE END-OF-GAME SEQUENCE! WELL DONE.

GRAND PRIX CIRCUIT (Accolade) - DISK ONLY

Although Grand Prix Circuit allows you to race against the professionals, it does not allow you to compete with the REAL Formula One drivers. This program, from John Barry, has been designed to rectify that situation. The DATA statements in lines 64-72 can be edited so that you can choose who you wish to race against. The names must not, however, exceed 12 characters in length and must be in order of worst at top and best at bottom.

N.B. Music MUST be switched ON.

There is a bug in the game that gives a Turbo-Boost button effect.

Select a level of difficulty which allows you to change gears: in top gear, press the fire button and push the joystick forward; the revs (not speed) will accelerate rapidly. Release the fire button and the speed will instantaneously catch up with the revs.

POKE TIPS FOR MORONS!

I've received quite a few letters over the past few months from new 64 owners who 'can't reset their machine' to type in one of the POKES. The reason for this problem is thus: IF YOU DON'T HAVE A RESET SWITCH YOU CAN'T RESET YOUR C64! Ask at your local computer store for one of these ingenious little devices, stating the type of computer you possess - they're around three pounds for the bog-standard 64 or six quid for the C64C. DON'T ATTEMPT TO RESET THE COMPUTER USING ANY OTHER METHOD - there's a high probability that you'll destroy your 64 in the process!

TIPS - THE RERELEASE REMIX (12" or CD Single)

COMMANDO (Encore)

Old, even by budget standards, this badly-programmed but utterly brilliant coin-op conversion is still the reason for a not-inconsiderable number of tips enquiries.

Resetting the machine and typing

POKE 14631,0 (RETURN)
SYS 2128 (RETURN)
is the sure-fire way to gain access to a lot of lives.

DROPZONE (ZZAP!/US Gold)

This one's real old, but it's been the most popular game in the ZZAP! offices the last few weeks and it's even on the ZZAP! mega-compilation. Anyway, lots of peeps who aren't called Robin Hogg find this awesome Defender clone a touch tough, four years after its original release. Fear not though, Randy comes to the rescue with this infinite lives POKE.

Load up Dropzone and reset your 64, then enter

POKE 1007,55:
POKE 1011,132:
POKE 1012,255 (RETURN)
SYS 6912 (RETURN)

to nudge the game back into play

BOMB JACK (Encore)

I've always found Jack's antics a little tiresome, but it seems that I'm severely outnumbered. Oh well, these POKES may help. Reset and type
POKE 5112,0 (RETURN)
SYS 3101 (RETURN)
for infinite lives

1942 (Elite)

Want to speed up the scroll by three times in this interesting WWII shoot-'em-up? LOAD the game and reset the machine, then type

POKE 5666,10 (RETURN)

How about permanent on-screen bullets, which destroy anything which strays into their path? Simple. Enter

POKE 8040,(5 to 24) (RETURN)

Invisible laser beam? Bet you didn't think they had those at Midway! Type in

POKE 11839,10 (RETURN)

And to start the action,
SYS 2640 (RETURN)

ACE II (Cascade)

How about invincibility in the skies? It's really recommended (if only because those enemy planes move so damned fast!).

Type in DUSTY BUG on the high-score table, and Bob's your uncle. Ish.

BOMB JACK II (Encore)

This sequel is, in my opinion, a much more challenging game than its predecessor. Which is why some of you may require this cheat.

Entering

POKE 7053,200 (RETURN)
SYS 39712 (RETURN)

after LOADING the game and resetting the machine gives the player lives as far as the mind can consciously contemplate.

EXPERT POKES!

(or rather, POKES for Experts)

Or any other backup cartridge with a 'POKE' facility, for that matter. No SYS calls, so it's just a case of LOAD the game, press the little button on the side of the cartridge, slip in the cheat and restart the game! Jamie Clowes, you're a hero.

FIRELORD (Hewson)

POKE 5721,173 (RETURN)
POKE 62302,173 (RETURN)

STARQUAKE (Bubble Bus)

POKE 12820,165 (RETURN)
POKE 62786,181 (RETURN)

ELIDON (Activision)

POKE 2831,173 (RETURN)
POKE 3849,173 (RETURN)

HERBERT'S DUMMY RUN (Mikrogen)

POKE 4472,165 (RETURN)
POKE 4764,165 (RETURN)
POKE 11334,165 (RETURN)

BUBBLE BOBBLE (Firebird)

POKE 1240,189 (RETURN)

BRIAN BLOODAXE (The Edge)

POKE 38270,165 (RETURN)

SUPER PIPELINE II (Taskset)

POKE 33106,173 (RETURN)

ATTACK OF THE MUTANT CAMELS (Llamasoft)

POKE 10257,165 (RETURN)
POKE 11018,165 (RETURN)

CRYSTAL CASTLES (US Gold)

POKE 41624,165 (RETURN)

DROPZONE (US Gold)

POKE 3060,173 (RETURN)

BREAKTHRU (US Gold)

POKE 6553,173 (RETURN)

SUPER ZAXXON (US Gold)

POKE 44765,165 (RETURN)

ALIENS (Mastertronic)

Even though this title (the UK version) has been doing the rounds for quite some time, it's still one of the most playable and enjoyable film tie-ins to date. However, if you find that you're dying somewhat sooner than you anticipated, reset the game and enter

POKE 42043,234:
POKE 42044,234:
POKE 42045,234 (RETURN)
for infinite ammo, and/or
POKE 42386,234:
POKE 42387,234:
POKE 42388,234 (RETURN)
for infinite stamina

SYS 38233 (RETURN) mixes the new code into the works, and (RESTORE) starts the game, once the READY prompt appears. Happy killing!

SABOTEUR (Encore)

Have YOU been dressing from top to toe in a black, clinging suit?

Have YOU been running about late at night, with such grace that you were almost gliding through the air?

Do you deal with hoodlums in a suitably vicious manner, using an array of obscure weapons?

If so, go away. The POKE below is only for people who aren't any good at this Durell rerelease, the sequel of which is also presently doing the rounds at £2.99. Reset the game and type deals a mighty blow to criminals, by boosting your life count up to a massive 255. Who needs Batman, eh?

POKE 56325,255 (RETURN)
SYS 30735 (RETURN)

SANXION (Rack-It)

After a highly successful spell at full-price, this top shoot-'em-up can now be found among the little boxes on the budget shelves. And, very soon, on a Thalamus mega-compilation. And what better complement to an ace game than an ace infinite lives listing? Simply type in the program below (remembering to SAVE it for later use), then insert the Sanxion tape, RUN the cheat and press play on the C2N. Easy, when you know how!

SAVE the listing to tape for future use, then RUN the program. It's at this stage that you insert the Rambo cassette into the C2N and press play. The game won't run after LOADING-type SYS 16863 (RETURN) when it resets: You are ready to use the music system!

Pressing '1' gives access to the following:

Q - EFFECT
O - EFFECT

While '2' lets you use

E - EFFECT
D - DRUMS
B - SHORT TUNE

Stop the tune/effect by hitting the Space Bar.

Fast forward the tune playing with the 'Up Arrow' key.

RETURN turns the three voices off or on.

E.g. Have either all three voices playing, one, two or three on their own, or one and two, two and three or one and three together.

SCOOBY DOO (Encore)

Surprised that this one ever got onto the full-price market, never mind budget. I wonder if Shaggy smokes rollies? There's a question for you to ponder while you LOAD the cassette, reset the 64 and enter this POKE for unlimited Doo's.

POKE 7450,96 (RETURN)
SYS 2560 (RETURN)
to restart the game.

TRAPDOOR (Alternative)

The telly show's great, so it comes as a bit of a surprise to find that the game's a lot of fun, too. And at under two quid, you'd be a bit of a divvy to miss it! Especially now that you have access to a triff infinite lives POKE.

Simply load the game and reset the machine before entering

POKE 14914,96 (RETURN)
SYS 14336 (RETURN)
to restart

MANIC MINER (Mastertronic)

Yeah! The classic platform game which received a Silver Medal from myself and Maff not too far back is given a quick rub down and a spot of light lunch, thanks to this one-liner (or four).

Reset the machine after LOADING the tape, and type

POKE 16573,234 (RETURN)
POKE 16572,234 (RETURN)
POKE 16571,234 (RETURN)
SYS 16384 (RETURN)

and pick yourself up a lovely bunch of lives. An infinite amount, in fact!

RANDY'S TIPS

MILLENNIUM

(Activation)

This Sizzling colonisation 'experience' can be completed using a number of different strategies. Here's one of them – sent in by Anton Van Deurzen of Hoogvliet, Holland.

Getting Started

- ◆ First get maximum power by building all the solar panels (MK1, MK2, etc)
- ◆ If you have insufficient power try switching on the previous build panel or switch off Resources.
- ◆ If Production says you have a material shortage, then check that Resources is switched on. If not, switch it on and advance a few days.
- ◆ Build six to eight Grazers and send them to the asteroids. If the bulletin-board says one of them has a mineable asteroid, switch to him, take the load and send him to the moon. When the moon is reached, land, unload it and send it back to the asteroids.
- ◆ Once you have a few colonies you can use the Grazers to transport materials from other colonies to the Moon.
- ◆ Build a bunker and store an MKX in it.
- ◆ As soon as you have the materials, build about three modules to increase the life-support's capacity.
- ◆ Additionally, build a Waverider, too – you will need a fast ship later on in the game.
- ◆ While advancing through the days, try to keep Production busy. After all, a Production factory, which does not produce is worthless!

Building Colonies

- ◆ Always remember that you cannot build a colony unless you have some information on the planned location.
- ◆ Information is gleaned by first sending a probe to a planet then, as soon as it gets there, setting up Research.
- ◆ Try to send to each base a Carrack with a solagen bigger than MK1 and a few fighters.

- ◆ When the base has reached the set location, land. A colony will be established.
- ◆ Always switch on Resources first. If you have insufficient power, activate a larger MK and, when you have a man-shortage, advance a few days (how many days you can estimate using the breeding speeds diagram).
- ◆ Once you have some Uranium (check the table to find its whereabouts) you can build and send some very handy orbital lasers, too!

Combat Fighting

- ◆ Keep the left-hand mouse button pressed (for autofire) and keep the enemy in your sights – it is VERY difficult to relocate him.
- ◆ Obviously, launch a fighter at defences before you engage in Combat.
- ◆ Pressing the right-hand mouse button stops your fighter moving in any direction.
- ◆ It is always better to have at least two orbital lasers at any base. With these, you need only to look on the radar, wait for the enemy to reach the innermost circle and press the fire icon. Not all of the enemies will be destroyed, but the few that are left can be taken out with either another burst of laser-fire or a missile.
- N.B. Each laser can be used only ONCE!

The Scenario

- ◆ The first colony will find the plans for a Fleet-carrier.
- ◆ A colony will become infected with an unknown virus. Research the vaccine and produce it. Then send the Waverider (loaded with the vaccine) to the infected colony. Do NOT forget to unload the Waverider once it has arrived at its destination.
- ◆ Build the Fleet-carrier as soon as possible with the help of Resources at other colonies.
- ◆ Meanwhile, keep them on strength by maintaining the amount of at least two fighters and two orbital lasers.
- ◆ As soon as the Fleet-carrier is finished, load it with as many fighters as you need. With 30 fighters it is full, but you are unlikely to need that many. Head for Mars.

BREEDING SPEEDS

Human(oid)	: normal
Martian	: extremely fast
Hydrogold	: normal
Nitroid	: extremely fast
Sulphuroid	: fast
Methanoid	: fast

- ◆ The Fleet-carrier will be attacked once it reaches the Red Planet. Take control of the carrier, launch the fleet and take out the enemy.
- ◆ Keep Mars in your sights and the next enemy fighter will be right in front of you. Make sure that you do not lose sight of the planet.
- ◆ Once the enemy has been destroyed, and the Fleet-carrier announces that it is in orbit, start a colony there and on Triton.
- ◆ If you want to, take back from the colonies all of your fighters and lasers because they stand little chance of being attacked – Mars has been conquered. You cannot dismantle them, but you can ship them to Defences.
- ◆ The Martian colony will find plans for a Terraformer. That is the reason for the need for a base on Triton. The Terraformer needs Chromium, and Triton is the only place at which it can be found.
- ◆ The Terraformer's weight is 1060 tons and the biggest transporter you have, the Fleet-carrier, can handle only 1050 tons maximum. Don't panic. A few days later, Research will come up with an idea – to rebuild the Fleet-carrier in order to transport the Terraformer to Earth.
- ◆ Before returning to the moon-base to modify the Fleet-carrier, send around 200 men as crew, in ships in orbit around Earth. It isn't absolutely necessary to wait in Earth's orbit; the planet is simply the closest.
- ◆ A huge force of Martians will storm you whilst the Fleet-carrier is out of service. Destroy as many as possible with your orbital lasers and let the remainder attack. Everyone in Life-Support will perish, meaning you have insufficient workers to complete the rebuilding of the Fleet-carrier.
- ◆ Retrieve the MKX from the bunker and activate it; your Fleet-carrier is untouched by the attack.
- ◆ Send all of your ships back to the moon-base and dismantle them. You now have people in Life-Support, enough to finish the building work. It should be finished in a couple of days.
- ◆ Load the Terraformer into the Fleet-carrier and send it to Earth. Land and wait.
- ◆ During this time, all of your colonies will declare independence – this is of no importance. Keep advancing the days until the bulletin-board says that Earth is ready.
- ◆ Base a colony on Earth and advance a few days.

YOU HAVE COMPLETED MILLENNIUM 2.!!!

Well that's the master. But how do you use it? Easy, if you follow the instructions!

1. LOAD the game
2. RESET the machine
3. Enter the listing (either type it in or LOAD it if previously SAVED)
4. Type in the DATA line relevant to the program
5. RUN the listing
6. Sit back, listen to the music and get spaced-out by the raster lines!

THE CHARLEY KNIGHT MUSIC THINGIES!

What's this? An eight-line program which allows you to hack the music out of a staggering amount of games? Surely it can't be done, no no no no! Yes yes yes yes yes!!! Charles Knight of Edmonton has devised this fabulous listing, as well as coming up with the DATA statements for no less than FORTY-ONE TITLES! Well, technically there's only thirty-eight games, but there are 41 pieces of music. Anyway, let's dispense with the formalities, shall we? On with the listing!

MARTIN WALKER DEMO (ZZAP! Megatape 5)

Crumbs and crikey! More stuff for the ZZAP! Megatape, this time a routine which brings forth a whole new tune on the Axe-Man's aural offering. And it's from Phi in Cheddar. Wonder if he's as cheesy as his hometown?

(Electronic Arts)

This game has generated more interest in tipsters than I thought it would, with some very nice stuff being sent in by a few people. What I've decided to do is create an amalgamation of the best bits of all of them. The basic solution is from James Wright in Staffordshire, the map is from John Loftus in Gateshead and the codes are from James, John and Alexander Schütz from Austria. First of all let's kick off with the solution...

When you start in the bar, use the PAX and send a message to Armitage just quoting your bank account number. Now access banking and download everything to your chip, pay Ratz and leave immediately.

Go straight to Shin's Pawn shop and say "You haven't the cash, I'll pay you back later" and Shin will then let you have the deck for nothing.

Now go to the Gentleman Loser and get your Cryptology chip and Matrix pass from Shiva, then access Cheap Hotel's database. Use the second level password to edit your bill, buy some caviar and then edit the bill again. Access Regular Fellows and download Battlechess 2.0. Access Worldchess, get a full membership and enter the tournament twice to get $600.

Go to Cheap Hotel and pick up the caviar, then go to Metro Holografix, ask him about skill and buy Debug and ICE breaking. Next ask him about Joystick and then buy the Joystick.

Go to Crazy Edo's and trade the caviar for Comlink 2.0.

Go to House of Pong and give the Joystick to the monk to get Zen and Sophistry.

Go back to Cheap Hotel and access Panther Modems to pick up Comlink 3.0. Access SEA and pick up Comlink 4.0 and Sequencer 1.0. Access Eastseabod for Comlink 5.0 and finally go to Yakuza for Comlink 6.0. Now access Hosakacorp and upload Comlink 6.0 for $7,500. Edit New Personnel and enter your name and bank account number.

Go to Julius Deane and ask him about skill. Buy Phenomenology, Philosophy and Psychanalysis. Now make your way to the Matrix Restaurant.

Stop outside Crazy Edo's or you will be arrested for conspriny with Armitage. Wait until it's the 17th (when it's safe) and carry on to the Matrix Restaurant.

Buy Logic and Software Analysis, then ask about upgrades and upgrade everything possible.

Make your way to the High-tech zone and say to the guard "I work for Hosaka".

Go to Hosaka and pick up your $10,000 paycheck before leaving to go to Asano Computing.

Insult Crazy Edo and side with Asano to get good prices for decks, then buy the Tofu.

Go back to the Cheap Hotel, access Gentleman Loser and download all ICE breaking software. Access Yakuza and download their ICE breaking software. You are now ready for the Matrix.

General NEUROMANCER Tips

FIGHTING AI'S

On all AI's apart from Greystoke and Neuromancer, use weakness skill until it fails, then use strongest other AI skill.

BEST BREAKER SOFTS

Good - Hammer, Decoder, Blowtorch
Better - Drill, Doorstop
Best - Depthcharge, Concrete, Logicbomb

BEST VIRUS SOFTS

Good - Thunderhead, Python
Best - Injector, Acid

GENERAL HINTS

Always delete softwarez that have been superseded as you only have enough room for five softwarez. Always use slow first in ICE combats. Armorall resets the shielding on your deck, allowing your deck to take more hits rather than you. Armorall 1.0 can only be used once and is slow. Armorall 2.0 can be used twice and is quicker. Armorall 3.0 can be used three times and is fast. Armorall 4.0 can be used four times and is fastest. Easyrider lets you go into any zone once you are in Cyberspace.

KGB if used in Cyberspace (but not in combat) will take you to the KGB database no matter where you are.

If you go to Zion-Cluster whilst in possession of Musicianship, you can play dub to get a free ride to Freeside.

To make $500,000, open an account at the Bank of Zurich with a minimum of $1000. Break into the Bank of Berne in Cyberspace then use the Fund Transfer option. Enter the source account number 121519831200 and press RETURN, then type LYMA1211MAR2 (RETURN) BOZOBANK (RETURN) and then enter your account number.

To gain money you can sell your body parts which will be replaced by plastic imitations, or you can reply to an ad which is displayed on PAX. You must reply with your BAMA ID No. - £10,000 will be deposited in your bank account.

COPTALK Skill Chip can be purchased from Larry at MICROSOFTS.

Using COPTALK allows access to information from the cop in DONUT WORLD. When COPTALK is upgraded you can gain further information.

Information can be bought from the lady in the massage parlour but you will be caught at LAWBOT if you do.

Your old deck is at SHIN'S PAWN SHOP. You can get this back for free if you say that you haven't the money at the time and will come back for it later.

You will be kicked out of the CHEAP HOTEL if you do not pay your bill. This can be done by accessing their database and editing the bill.

Shivo at the GENTLEMEN LOSER BAR has your CRYPTOLOGY chip, as well as having HARDWARE chips for sale. Later in the game she will have a guest pass for the MATRIX RESTAURANT to give to you. You can also glean information from her.

MAAS BIOLABS is locked. Julius Deane can sell you a Gas Mask, Upgrades and Skill Chips including BARGAINING and PHILOSOPHY. You can also gain information on companies.

CHIBA CITY AIRPORT can fly you to FREESIDE or ZION CLUSTER.

METRO HOLOGRAFIX can provide you with Software and a Joystick.

CRAZY EDO'S USED HARDWARE can provide you with non-Cyberspace capable decks at reasonable prices. You can get COMLINK 2.0 if you give Edo some caviar.

HOUSE OF PONG needs someone to retrieve the Holy Joystick for them. If you retrieve it you receive ZEN and SOPHISTRY chips.

ASANO COMPUTERS can offer you top-quality Cyberspace capable decks.

Upgrades and Skill Chips can be bought at MATRIX RESTAURANT providing you have your pass.

SLAYER (Rack-It)

About time we had a listing for Hewson's budget beauty. Quite a heavyweight one this, too, but then again, this is the tips special! Jon Barry Walsall's answer to John Paul II, has sent in the program, which not only gives you the option of infinite lives, but also unlimited shields, as well as the chance to change either player's colour!

Type in and SAVE the listing for future use, then remove the unwanted cheats (lines 36 to 40 must ALL be deleted if infinite shields aren't required) and RUN. Got that? Get to it, then.

THAT'S ALL FOLKS!!!

And that's it! I bet you found at least something in there of some use to you, be it a map, solution, cheat or piccy of me! And if there wasn't anything there for you, then quite frankly you don't deserve to own a computer! After all, why bother with the machine if you're not going to buy the games, be they past or present?!

Normal service will be resumed next month (it'll need to be; I've ran out of tips!); but not before I've had a well-deserved break up home - don't worry though, I shall return in time to whet your whistle with all that's best in the Commodore 64/Amiga tips world. If YOU have a tip which you'd like to share with the rest of civilisation as we know it, jot it down and post it to the usual address:

35 WORDS FOR ONLY £2.50!

Thousands of Commodore computer owners across the world read ZZAP! every month. The Reader Classifieds are your low-cost opportunity to reach them with a small ad, whether you want to buy, sell, swap or advise. And it's simple - a one-off cost for up to 35 words for £2.50. Just fill in the form below!

CLASSIFIED HEADINGS

ZZAP! Reader Classified Section is not open to trade or commercial advertisers, but Fanzines may use it. The headings are self-explanatory: WANTED, FOR SALE, SWAPLINE, USER GROUPS, PEN PALS, FANZINES and EVENTS DIARY (for club/user group news, meetings or planned events). However, be careful about ZZAP! publishing dates with the last!

HOW TO PLACE YOUR SMALL AD

Cut out and send off the form, together with your payment of £2.50 per entry form (cheques or postal orders preferably, made payable to NEWSFIELD LTD). Photocopies of the form are acceptable.

- The maximum is 35 words
- The service is not open to trade/commercial advertisers
- Small ads will be printed in the first available issue
- The editor reserves the right to refuse ads which do not comply with normal decent practice, or which could be interpreted as encouraging software piracy

SCORELORD

Those vile cess-pool Ludlow residents think they know it all about high scores - that Rob (Boyo) H in particular is finding it difficult to get in through the door these days. Well enough's enough, time to extract all that non-essential brain matter with this Sucko-matic 20 Probe, drill and hoover combination device (complete with free nipple twister to bring tears to the eyes). Sadly it's little change for most of the scores this month but THAT will soon change - OR ELSE!! Time to corrupt that precious Kick Off League disk of theirs before they finish the league.

SCORE OF THE MONTH

KICK OFF

10-0 Dom Handy (TGM) - he thrashed Warren Lapworth (also TGM - something fishy going on here?)

ZZAP vs TGM KICK OFF LEAGUE FINAL RESULTS (Curses! Too late!! - The Almighty Scorelord)

Italy (Phil King - ZZAP!) 31 Points
Brazil (Dominic Handy - TGM) 29 Points
Argentina (Computer Player) 26 Points
France (Computer Player) 24 Points
England (Rob H - ZZAP!) 22 Points
Holland (Robin Candy - TGM) 17 Points
USSR (Warren Lapworth - TGM) 10 Points
West Germany (Mark Caswell - TGM) 3 Points

(Even with one man less than the TGM rabble the ZZAP! team still managed to win through with Phil King winning a sharp 430,000,000 volts electric shock from me for being such a big head. Like a football he deserves kicking.)

GET THE NET OUT, LADS — HERE COMMS RANDY!

Hi there. It's interesting, logging onto Compunet after a short break. Turn off the C64 for a week or so, and you'll find so much new controversy, uploads and the like. Quite staggering.

An interesting response to the new ZZAP! Music dir, with people actually uploading tunes of their own (Postman Pat was mega!). Keep up the good work.

A LOG-ON THE LIVE SIDE The Real-Time Rivals Compared

The unique thing about Compunet is the speed at which things change, new uplds appear, etc. And the fastest changing areas, are the ones with real-time interaction like Partyline and Chat. Stand-by for the Rand opinion of 'em both.

PartyLine

Found at PARTY, the service costs £1.00 per hour to use (plus, of course, normal telephone charges) and it's a chat facility available to you via your computer, be it C64 or

Amiga. It's known as PartyLine because the setup of the service is akin to a party at someone's home. Should someone wish to leave the LOBBY (the room which every PartyLine user logs into) all that is needed is for that person to 'build' a room and give it a name (RANDY'S ROOM, BAR, TOILET, etc). If you wish your room to be strictly 'invited guests only', you can lock the door and only allow in visitors if you want to.

And that's yer lot. Check out the comp below and, if you think it's worth your while, enter it. That's all from me for this month, so until next time, remember — If opportunity comes your way, don't knock it! ('Oi! get off my catchphrase!' — Bob Monkhouse). Terra.

Randy's Verdict: Great fun, but a tad on the expensive side if you're a regular user.

Chat

Now upgraded to Pro-Chat, thanks to 'ace coder' Top-Cat, this service differs to PartyLine in that it isn't strictly a real-time affair. Chat is an ordinary area, just like ZZAP! Dir, where users go to to exchange information. Using the normal Compunet Duckshoot commands (or the new set provided by Pro-Chat) you write your message, upld it onto the system and wait for a reply.

Randy's Verdict: A laborious and frustrating way of conversing with fellow 'Netters, but there are no extra charges incurred during use, unlike PartyLine.

ROLL UP! ROLL UP! IT'S DA GREAT COMPUNET GIVEAWAY!

Modems-a-plenty are waiting to give to YOU (part Two in a series of Three)!!!

It's part two of our great Compunet promotion, folks! Yes! Once again we give you the chance to walk away with one of FIVE C64 modems, complete with a three-month Gold subscription, giving immediate access to the best of the 'Net!

Silliness abounds for this promotion, as what we want you to do is send us an illustration demonstrating the strangest use of a Compunet modem which your cerebral mass can muster up. Don't worry if you're piccy isn't up to Oli Frey standards — we're looking for humour, not the next Da Vinci.

Send your entries, however bad they may be, to Closing date is 26th October, but if you STILL haven't come up with the goods, don't worry — you'll have ONE MORE GO next month! And Newsfield/Compunet folk can't enter! So there!

"The Crusader Of Justice."

For the past 5 years you have been away fighting in the Holy Land. When you finally return home, your father, The King, has been deposed by your brutal uncle, and terror and oppression now rule this once serene Kingdom.

You must recover the throne.

However, deceit and treachery are everywhere and you must prove your birthright through guile and trials of combat in archery, arm-wrestling and sword-play...

This is a magnificent adventure set in a medieval world, where your strategy is as important as your strength.

STRIDE ON!

Win a FANTASTIC VIDEO
WALKMAN in our outrageously brilliant 0898 competition!!!

A competition prize to beat all others for an arcade conversion which wipes the floor with the opposition! Strider, this issue's Gold Medal-winning run-beat-jump-and-everything-else-'em-up is sooo fantastic that we simply couldn't pass up the chance of a compo to match the calibre of the game.

And we haven't. A SONY VIDEO WALKMAN is up for grabs in this month's additive-free 0898 romp! This little baby has everything you could wish for in a TV/VCR. And it's so small you can slip it into your Adidas bag, take it to school, and watch your favourite film during that oh-so-boring Social Studies lesson!

With an adjustable 7" LCD screen and oodles of different sockets, you can be the envy of your friends (and your Social Studies master when he finds it!). What's more instead of bulky VHS tapes it uses Sony's advanced Video 8 format which, besides having a wide range of feature films available for it, is also used by most compact video cameras. And of course you can record off TV.

20 runners-up will each receive a copy of the utterly brilliant game on either the C64 or Amiga. Remember to state which format you want your game on when you write in!!!

There couldn't be an easier way entering the draw for the games and the amazingly titchy (67 x 39 x 138mm) first prize - just one simple phone call and you're away. The number, as always, is and, being an 0898 number, it costs 25 per minute off peak (6pm-8am weekdays, as well as weekends and Bank Holidays) and 38p per minute at all other times.

0898 555081

Can you miss this opportunity to be admired by your friends and adored by hordes of beautiful women? We think not. Get dialling!

FISHENDERS

What is Meeshell Fish going to do, now she's packed her job in? Will Kathy Seal recover from her terrifying ordeal? And was that sudden splash REALLY 'Dirty' Ken? None of this plus the latest info from the ZZAPI crew will be revealed if you ring and take into account the amount it costs (see above). Do it - 16,000,000 fry are relying on YOUR call!

0898 555085

THE BUDGET BIT!

PAPERBOY Encore, £1.99 (Rerelease)

Hop onto your BMX bike and take on the toughest area in town with this 8-bit incarnation of the diagonally-scrolling 'throw-'em-up' (sic) arcade smash of a couple of years back.

You begin your round on Monday morning, at the bottom of the street. Your task is relatively simple in theory: make sure that all of your subscribers receive their copy of the Daily Sun. Ahh, if only life were that easy! For, along the street, are a number of obstacles which will, intentionally or otherwise, hinder your progress. Obstacles include yappy Jack Russell terriers (you shouldn't have hit it with that paper the other week!), kids on skateboards, burglars, workmen and oncoming traffic to name but a fraction of your worries.

Points are scored in a number of ways; should you hit a subscriber's door with a newspaper, you register a delivery – however, lobbing The Daily Sun into the letterbox gives a bonus. Extra points are also awarded for smashing the windows of non-subscribers and knocking over hazards.

Should you reach the end of the street, you are invited to try your hand at completing a lap of the local BMX track. Points are scored by hitting various targets with newspapers, and a bonus is given should you finish the course before time runs out.

Paperboy received a non-too-praising review first time round, but at this budget price it's worth a look.

A reasonable representation of the arcade machine is offered, albeit with a few non-critical bugs. It's a shame that there isn't a variable difficulty option, as the first few goes are a touch on the hard side, but other than that this is an above average title with not that many grey hairs. Buy this if you enjoyed the coin-op.

OVERALL 63%

JACK THE NIPPER Kixx, £2.99 (Rerelease)

All kids are naughty, that's a fact of life. Yes, even Cedric the oh-so-refined businessman from down the road used to get up to antics which would make your hair stand on end. But there's naughtiness and there's downright evil. And Jack is positively devilish. He is; honest. If you don't believe me, just check out some of the 'pranks' he gets up to in the first of two games dealing with the troublesome tot.

The idea behind Jack The Nipper is a simple one. All you have to do is become the world's smallest pain in the neck, utilising any means at your disposal. And what is at your disposal? Peashooters, glue, expensive (and breakable!) crockery, a bicycle horn and other equally destructive and destructible items are lying around the town, aching to be used and abused by you.

Of course, being a toddler has its problems, your biggest being the dreaded NAPPY RASH! Being caught by one of the many 'grown-ups' in the game brings on the condition (monitored by a Rashometer at the bottom of the playing area); once the level of rash reaches the top of the meter, you receive a (well-deserved) spank and lose one of your lives, of which you possess five (four more and you could be a cat!). Success is measured by the Naughtyometer; reach 100% and you achieve ultimate Naughtiness and complete the game.

This is great fun; presentation is tip-top, with humorous adult sprites and a thoroughly cheeky Jack. Jack The Nipper is actually two games in one: you can try your hand at the arcade adventure side of things or, alternatively, you can rush around the many screens and be, to be blunt, a little git. There's something here for everyone (including a wicked sense of humour) and at £2.99, Jack The Nipper is an inexpensive lesson in how NOT to bring up your own kids!

OVERALL 85%

GHOSTS AND GOBLINS

Encore, £1.99 (Rerelease)

Why is it that knights of old have to be so posey? When damsels are in distress any sensible person would leave the rescuing to the local fuzz. But not knights, nosiree, it's a case of 'have armour, will travel' with them.

One such knight stars in this horizontally-scrolling platforms and ladders game, a conversion of an ageing Taito coin-op (the sequel of which, Ghouls and Ghosts, is currently doing the rounds in arcades across the country).

Your girlie has recently been abducted by a troupe of travelling demons, much to your annoyance (after all, who's going to do the cooking? © 1989 Sexist Stereotypes Inc.). Being a hard knight and all, you can't let your friends know that you've been tricked by a bunch of poncey monsters, so the job of Totty Rescuer falls on your shoulders.

Beginning in the local graveyard, you must fight your way through the undead hordes until you reach your girl. It's not going to be easy, as the nasties went to a lot of trouble to get hold of her, and they aren't ready to give her up (after all, who's going to do the cleaning? © 1989 Sexist Stereotypes II).

You aren't without some degree of protection against your oppressors; as well as your metallic garb, you also start with a magic lance - no matter where you throw it, it always reappears in your hand, ready to be used again. During your quest you can collect extra weapons, some good, others not so hot. Should you be hit by an enemy weapon you'll lose your armour and end up in your underwear. Y-Fronts aren't the most durable (or protective) of garments, however, and another hit spells your doom.

Ghosts and Goblins was universally acclaimed in its £9.99 form and has lost none of its shine, polish or addictive qualities, even after all this time. The sprites are an accurate representation of the coin-op, as are the music and sound effects. But the best part of the game is undoubtedly its playability, which is tremendous. It's challenging without being frustrating, difficult without being impossible. A software buyer's dream, no less.

OVERALL 97%

MASTERS OF THE UNIVERSE

Kixx, £2.99 (Rerelease)

Anyone who has seen the film will know Eternia's arch enemy, Skeletor (boo hiss) has stolen the key to time-travel, hoping to become dictator of the Universe. He-Man (yaay) is hot on his tail, following him through time to the late 20th century.

Masters Of The Universe is split into five separate play areas: In The Streets, you must walk around a Gauntletesque floor layout, dodging or assaulting Skeletor's henchmen whilst searching for the locations of the key. Charlie's Shoot-out pits your skill and speed against the evil troops in a game similar to Prohibition (shoot baddies at windows with your crosshairs). Clambering onto the rooftops implements the Disk Battle, where you battle against more enemies in the skies, perched atop a floating anti-grav disk. Should you manage to find the eight pieces of key, you will meet face to face with Skeletor, in a Final Confrontation where the stakes are high.

While graphics start off with a pathetically small He-Man, later levels are more attractive, especially the Final Confrontation where both He-Man and Skeletor appear in glorious Big-O-Vision! That, combined with some above average effects and a good title tune, makes a reasonable purchase.

OVERALL 61%

RESCUE ON FRACTALUS

Mastertronic, £2.99 (Rerelease)

Your mission is to rescue pilots who've been shot down behind enemy lines. The fractal terrain is mountainous, with laser turrets on the mountain tops and kamikaze flying saucers. While blasting the aliens you must use

In fact, Rescue on Fractalus has stood the test of time well. The illusion of negotiating valleys and canyons is done well and even now the fractal effect is impressive. The sound effects are a little simple nowadays although the footsteps of the radar to scan for downed pilots, then land nearby to pick them up. If you're close enough the pilot runs up and bangs on the door to be let in. Simple... But wait, doesn't that pilot running to you have a green head? It's a Jaggi alien and he's bashing through the windscreen! Quick, switch the shields back on and fry him! Phew! Lucky you didn't open the door eh? A Jaggi in the ship is a one-way trip to disaster!

pilots and their subsequent banging on the ship door are excellent. Sadly higher levels change very little other than throw more aliens at the pilot (ultimately lessening the elements of surprise and the unknown). Such gripes are minor however, when you consider the tension, addictiveness and sheer FUN of it all. 'Buy this piece of software history or die' as the Jaggis might say!

16 K OUTSIDE operating system

ONLY £14.99 INC. VAT

A special KCS switching technique allows a program to be stored completely outside the memory of your Commodore 64/128. Using this system KCS developed the POWER CARTRIDGE. The 16K Cartridge, 100% machine code, gives the user an ideal extension to his normal computer.

POWER TOOLKIT

A powerful BASIC-Toolkit (Additional helpful commands) that considerably simplifies programming and debugging.

AUTO	HARDCAT	RENUMBER
AUDIO	HARDCOPY	REPEAT
COLOR	HEX$	SAFE
DEEK	INFO	TRACE
DELETE	KEY	UNNEW
DOKE	PAUSE	QUIT
DUMP	PLIST	MONITOR
FIND	ILOAD	BLOAD

RENUMBER : Also modifies all the GOTO's GOSUB's etc. Allows part of a program to be renumbered or displaced.

PSET : Set up of printer type.
HARDCAT : Prints out Directory.

The toolkit commands can be used in your programs.

DISK TOOL

Using POWER CARTRIDGE you can load up to 6 times faster from disk. The Disk commands can be used in your own programs.

DLOAD	DVERIFY	DIR
DSAVE	MERGE	DEVICE
DISK

MERGE : Two BASIC programs can be merged into one.
DISK : With DISK you can send commands directly to your disk.

TAPE TOOL

Using POWER CARTRIDGE you can work up to 10 times faster with your data recorder. The Tape commands can be used in your own programs.

LOAD	SAVE	VERIFY
MERGE	AUDIO

POWERMON

A powerful machine language monitor that is readily available and leaves all of your Commodore memory available for programming. Also works in BASIC-ROM, KERNAL and I/O areas.

A ASSEMBLE	I INTERPRET	S SAVE
C COMPARE	J JUMP	T TRANSFER
D DIS-	L LOAD	V VERIFY
ASSEMBLE	M MEMORY	W WALK
F FILL	P PRINT	X EXIT
G GO	R REGISTER	S DIRECTORY
H HUNT		DOS Commands

PRINTERTOOL

The POWER CARTRIDGE contains a very effective Printer-Interface, that self detects if a printer is connected to the Serial Bus or User-Port. It will print all Commodore characters on Epson and compatible printers. The printer-interface has a variety of set-up possibilities. It can produce HARDCOPY of screens not only on Serial printers (MPS801, 802, 803 etc) but also on Centronic printers (EPSON, STAR, CITIZEN, PANASONIC, etc). The HARDCOPY function automatically distinguishes between HIRES and LORES. Multi-colour graphics are converted into shades of grey. The PSET functions allow you to decide on Large/Small and Normal/Inverse printing. The printer PSET functions are:

PSET 0 - Self detection Serial/Centronics.
PSET 1 - EPSON mode only.
PSET 2 - SMITH-CORONA mode only.
PSET 3 - Turns the printing 90 degrees!!
PSET 4 - HARDCOPY setting for MPS802/1526.

PSET B - Bit-image mode.
PSET C - Setting Lower/Upper case and sending Control Codes.

PSET T - All characters are printed in an unmodified state.

PSET U - Runs a Serial printer and leaves the User-port available.

PSET Sx - Sets the Secondary address for HARDCOPY with Serial Bus.

PSET L1 - Adds a line-feed, CHR$(10), after every line.

PSET L0 - Switches PSET L1 off.

POWER RESET

On the back of the POWER CARTRIDGE there is a Reset Button. Pressing this button makes a SPECIAL MENU appear on the screen. This function will work with any programme.

CONTINUE - Allows you to return to your program.
- Return to BASIC.
- Normal RESET.
BASIC RESET - Saves the contents of the memory onto a Disk. The program can be reloaded later with BLOAD followed by CONTINUE.
TOTAL BACKUP DISK - RESET of any program.
- As BACKUP DISK but to TAPE.

RESET ALL TOTAL BACKUP TAPE - At any moment, prints out a Hardcopy of the screen. Using CONTINUE afterwards you can return to the program.
MONITOR - Takes you into the Machine language Monitor.

... it's dynamite!

64 Mr. HELI

Firebird, C64 £9.99 cassette, £14.99 disk; Amiga 24.99

After New Zealand Story's kuddly kiwi and Rainbow Island's bubbly Bob and Bub, the latest coin-op character bidding for maximum cuteness is Mr Heli, a helicopter which can walk. This Irem cross between the latest military firepower and a Mr Men character is a member of the Cosmic Heli Patrol, whose latest mission is to thwart the plans of mad scientist Mr Muddy. For reasons which are obscure Mr Muddy is leading his hi-tech creations on a violent stomp across an innocent little planet.

Mr Heli's brave attempt to stop the senseless destruction involves more than a little blasting. Firstly there's the endless hordes of walking, flying and even stationary enemies to be ▲ The oh-so-cute Mr Heli legs it across the ground.

Mr Heli's home computer debut provides a textbook example of 'it's not the power of the computer, but the way it's used'. While the C64 game impresses with glitzy, nicely detailed sprites, good backgrounds and superb end-of-level monsters the Amiga disappoints with garish graphics too big to be easily manoeuvred. Basic gameplay is tough on both machines, no sooner than you shoot one baddie two more enter. Collecting crystals at the same time needs concentration, and if you die you usually go back a long way, losing add-on weapons and all your cash as well. Nevertheless while the Amiga game is much too frustrating (and pricey), the C64 game provides a lot of fun - check it out.

ROBIN

The coin-op has held its own extremely well over the last couple of years with a good dose of arcade shoot-'em-up action mixed with Nemesis-style weapon improvement. The coin-op may well be remembered because of this but the Amiga conversion is best forgotten. Dodgy scrolling, imprecise collision detection and frustratingly small enemies fighting your far too large helicopter are some complaints that come to light. On the 64 things go well from the start with a catchy title tune, a correctly sized Mr Heli, great sprites all round and a wonderful level of gameplay direct from the coin-op. It may be tough but with only 3 levels it mustn't be too easy should it?

Cynics might wonder if the rescue mission isn't causing more damage than Mr Muddy, but as all good children know, selfless bravery brings its own reward (ie blue crystals and lots of guns!).

MEGABLAST

Imageworks, Amiga £24.99

●Bitmap Bros to top charts again

The first Galactic Conflict broke out a thousand years ago on the US West Coast with the Amiga-based coin-op Xenon. A single pilot saved the Federation then by defeating the Xenites and rescuing Captain Xod. The Xenites aren't ones to forgive and forget though, so with aid of the mega-hip Bitmap Brothers (who made lots of dosh converting the original war) they've kicked off the Second Galactic Conflict in revenge.

Five Time Bombs have been planted in the Process of Evolu-

The game of the Bomb The Bass album track kicks off with an appropriately impressive version of the Megablast, which continues in simplified form in the actual game. It's the graphics though, that really take your breath away. While the visual themes of the levels are imaginative and unique, their execution is well nigh perfect. From the silky animation of the tadpole enemies, to the retro-rockets on the fighter to the pilot light which ignites the gas of the flamethrower, Xenon 2 sets a new standard in presentation. But what of gameplay? Well, to begin with it's not that much more than a standard vertically scrolling shoot-'em-up. But as you get further into the game the ability to scroll the screen back, dive down, and the unbelievable range of wonderful weapons, provides the vital difference. With the urge to get ever further into the game for yet more of those brilliant graphics, and build up a completely over-the-top ship, Xenon 2 oozes addictivity. Quite simply the definitive Amiga shoot-'em-up.

tion, a surreal dimension made up of five evolutionary phases. Life started in the sea of course, so the first level is filled with sea anemones, tadpoles and a massive Nautilus Shellfish which resides at the end of the stage. Maddened by radiation from the Time Bomb planted beside it, this horrendous crustacean is mega-dangerous!

Level two sees the rise of the insects with beetles, flies and a massive, revolting spider gnashing its mandibles at you. As on all the levels but the first, this level has two massive creatures to be defeated so it's as well there's Crispin's Swop Shop. The Real Cash deposited ▼ Super Nashwan Power – pity it only lasts six seconds.

▼ Don't get licked!

Aren't shoot-'em-ups dead yet? Nope, not by a long chalk if they're going to keep improving with games like this one. I'm no big fan of the game-type, but this one had me battling to get the joystick off Robin like everyone else. To start with the unbelievable presentation (both visual and audio), combined with the sheer number of enemies is overwhelming. You soon get the hang of things though – the difficulty/frustration level seems just right – and the megablasting begins. As for any tiny little flaws, apart from the slight delay of the Swop Shop loading in I can't think of any. This is the one to hock your grandmother for!

N

by blasted aliens can be collected and spent here. You enter the shop automatically when you get so far in the game, and once Crispin turns off his Walkman trade begins. Firstly you can sell off any add-on weapons you've picked up or bought previously, typically Crispin will pay half what it costs to buy an item. Next you can choose what to bolt on your ship from a range of 24 hardware items.

Many of the items, such as the vital speed-ups, shot power increase, energy recharge and cannon pod, can be picked up from debris of destroyed aliens. The hardcore, megablasting stuff has to be bought though. And prices are steep. 6000 for homing missiles, 4500 for mines, 5000 for a flamethrower. What's more these awesome weapons can be built up together, and even duplicated. A taste of the possibilities is offered by the Super Nashwan Power, 600 for ten seconds of mega-blasting with a full kit of bolt-on weapons.

One of the most remarkable add-ons however, is 'Dive' which allows you to swoop down to the uninhabited lower level scrolling beneath the main action. You can keep your head down here for up to ten seconds at a time, but while you're hiding the aliens multiply making it that much harder when you pop up.

▼ Damn and blast everything!

Fantastic, superb, brilliant, bloody marvellous - I could go on and on calling out superlatives about Xenon 2. It's had enough pre-release hype to rival Batman and it's blown away all other Miggy shoot-'em-ups to date and I can safely say, for quite a while to come as well. The slow scrolling belies the frantically awesome ferocity of the game and it all gets worse with each yard gained, it really is a MEGA-BLAST when you're armed up but can you believe it, even coin-ops aren't this tough! As for the choice of in-game music - pah! What about some Heavy Metal?

Yeeha, it's one of them there multi-event sports simulations pardner! Six different tasks lie ahead of you, and it's your duty as living legend, Bill Cody, to ensure that each one is tackled to your fullest abilities.

First off is Target Practice. You're given the chance to demonstrate your shooting prowess in a couple of ways: by knocking out the 'flip up' bad-dies (being careful not to shoot at the innocent bystanders), followed by a round where a cow-poke hurls empty bourbon bottles into the air, just for you to shoot.

On to Knife Throwing. This highly dangerous sport entails hurling sharp knives at a revolving wheel. What's so dangerous about that? Ask the poor lass who's strapped to the wheel! Your score in this round depends on the distance from the girl which the knife lands – just make sure that it's not TOO close!

As a fan of the Epyx games I view most other sports game with a certain amount of scepticism. Rodeo Games is sufficiently different from the norm and enjoyable to play even though some of the simpler events aren't worth the long loading time on tape. The graphic quality is never below good but the sound effects are at times misplaced. I'm surprised there isn't a sense of humour about the game as most of the Epyx games benefited enormously from this. Despite this there's a good deal of playability to be found within Rodeo.

wound up with arguably the most dangerous of the six events – Steer Wrestling. Catch the seething bull and wrestle it to the floor by waggling the joystick.

Tynesoft have had a go once before at an 'alternative' multi-event game with Circus Games, which wasn't up to much. Thankfully, Buffalo Bill's Rodeo Games is a great improvement. None of the events featured would hack it as stand-alone games, but brought together in one package they add up to value all round. Each sub-game is playable, requiring a fair amount of practice to win through, and thankfully Tynesoft have included a 'Retry' feature so you can do just that! This is a good 'un, across both formats.

When you're happy with the team it's time to start the SBA league, playing against numerous computer teams. Here, you have the option of coaching, playing, or letting the computer or a second player control either of these activities.

Coaching decisions include both defensive and offensive tactics as well as substitutions (these are unlimited). If you choose to also play, you can have limited control over the ball-carrier, choosing when to

There are loads of options and statistics (nine seasons' worth!) in this but what seems at first sight to be a complex sports sim is surprisingly simplistic in actual match play. I'd also have preferred more control over the players than all those coaching options.

The game is viewed from the end of the court, only one half of the court being shown at one time. Other optional modules are available which allow you to play Side View games, and compete in College, Pro, and Fantasy Leagues.

After reading the huge instruction manual and waiting for the incredibly slow multiload I was ready to fall asleep. Unfortunately, the simple selection of tactics and very limited player control failed to wake me up. ## WANT TO JOIN THE ZZAP! TEAM?

Yep, ZZAP! is looking for a new Staff Writer and it could be you. Enjoying playing games is obviously part of the job, but being able to complete NEW ZEALAND STORY with your first go is no use to us unless you can also write about the game in a clear, informative and entertaining way. If you enjoy messing about with words as much as games you'll be ideal. Besides writing the long intros to games, plus your comments, you must also be prepared to come up with amusing competition pieces, news stories and features up to 3000 words long. If you think you're a good writer who can work under pressure, often to tight deadlines, and still help out around the office, get in touch.

To be considered, you must be over 16 years of age — preferably over 18. We'd also like a full CV detailing your age, qualifications, work experience, interests and anything else you think is relevant. Two referees, perhaps a teacher or a previous employer, would be useful as well. And most important, we'd like you to send us an example of your writing — ideally a ZZAP!-style review of a game of your choice. The review must include an unbiased intro, outlining the game's scenario and basic structure, and a comment.

Please send your application as soon as possible to Stuart Wynne, ZZAP! 64/Amiga, PO BOX 10, Ludlow, Shropshire, SY8 1DB. All applications will be acknowledged on receipt, and some candidates will be contacted later for expenses-paid interviews.

FALCON VS F-16 COMBAT PILOT

Falcon: Spectrum Holobyte/Mirrorsoft £24.99
Mission Disk One: Spectrum Holobyte/Mirrorsoft £19.99
F-16 Combat Pilot: Digital Integration £24.95

The General Dynamic F-16 Fighting Falcon is probably the closest thing to Luke Skywalker's X-Wing yet built. A small, low-cost fighter it consists of an advanced air frame wrapped around a powerful jet engine with a bubble-like cockpit perched on top. Relatively simple to fly and maintain it's the world's premier small fighter.

The first F-16 flight sim was Spectrum Holobyte's Falcon which somehow zoomed to the top of Amiga charts without a ZZAP! review. Almost a year later Mission Disk One has been released, radically improving the basic game just in time to fight off Digital Integration's long-awaited F-16 Combat Pilot.

UK programmers DI have a reputation to match Spectrum Holobyte's, but can they beat the Yanks on a sim of a US jet?

▲ The war doesn't stop at dusk in F-16 Combat Pilot.

TALONS OUT!

Popular with many European air forces, as well as forming a major part of the USAF's strike force in Europe, it's only appropriate that both sim's set themselves in Central Europe. Neither bother with actual town names, and the enemy is unnamed despite using Soviet MiGs... maybe Albania has declared war!

Falcon's scenario pits one air base against a multitude of targets spread across a relatively small map area. You can choose any of 12 missions to fly against targets such as bridges, factories, runways, tanks and MiG-21 fighters. The Mission Disk adds tanks, landing craft, trains, ammunition dumps, MiG-29s and twelve more missions. Five skill levels range from 'bounce-off-the-ground' up to Colonel level, where the F-16 is a much more fragile beast. In addition you can choose how many MiGs can be up in the air at any one time, up to a maximum of three.

A new feature offered by the Mission Disk is the interlinking of the missions to offer an overall mission. Unlike in the original, where the game effectively restarts once you land (apart from saving any medals to a service record), here if you blow up a factory it stays destroyed for several missions. Your ultimate objective is to wipe out the enemy's industrial and attack capabilities, while protecting your base from invasion. This is a big improvement, but you can still change your skill level every time you land, as cheats will be glad to know.

In DI's offering the pilot is assumed to be already competent with flight simulators as even the practice modes can prove very unforgiving. Besides landing and free-flight practice, you can also practice five different missions: Scramble - intercept MiGs, Hammerblow - destroy enemy's air capability, Deepstrike - strike supply and support, Tankbuster - says it all and Watchtower - deep reconnaissance.

More MiG combat but this time viewed from the chase plane. Any second now it'll be one dead Red (Falcon).

When you're adept at these you can go into training mode, setting up a service record. To go on a real mission you must first complete each of the five practice missions, saving to disk each time. If you crash the service record is erased (unless you cheat and reset your computer).

Complete your training and you can select Operation Conquest. Here you take the role of a wartime Squadron Leader and, besides flying your own aircraft, can send four other F-16s on combat missions. Unlike Falcon you don't select mission types by clicking on their names, rather you plan your mission against a target of your choosing via a map screen. This is a lot more realistic and adds a sizeable strategic element.

As in Falcon you can reduce the number of enemy vehicles sent against you by blowing up factories, but there's a lot more factories here so you can't stop tank attacks just by destroying one building, as you can in Falcon. Combat Pilot's map is generally a lot bigger - you'll need to refuel just to travel the length of it. The knock-on effect is superbly done as well, if your SAM (Surface-to-air missiles) sites are knocked out enemy MiGs become more of a problem.

CHOCKS AWAY

Right, enough of this chat. Let's get up there in the wild, blue yonder. Falcon pilots will be able to take off a lot easier and quicker - a pilot can lift off within a handful of seconds. On the lower levels the F-16 is extremely hard to stall and the engine is super-rated allowing for extremely rapid (and ridiculously short) takeoffs. On Colonel level things are very much harder - taking off with a heavy load here takes ages, controls become realistically sluggish and there's red outs as well as black outs.

Frame update is very smooth indeed with good control response and feel. Graphic presentation is generally first class; one of the most impressive parts of Falcon is the external view option. A chase plane can follow the F-16 as it makes attack runs, dogfights with MiGs and dodges missiles. Not all that good for landing the plane, but great for wowing your friends. Then there's the satellite view as well (complete with zoom function).

Sadly, the visual scanning range is incorrectly defined - telegraph poles, roads and the like can all be seen at heights of 80,000 up, in reality this wouldn't be possible.

F-16 Combat Pilot is a much different kettle of fish. While you can look behind you, or to the right or left, there are no external views in Combat Pilot and graphics are simpler. But there is the LANTIRN system for use in the dark, which amplifies light to provide an eerie green area of vision (there's no night flying in Falcon). The principal appeal of the game however, is the depth of play. On your first flight the runway will seem way too short, the flight controls too sluggish and only one life obviously insufficient. DI fans will accept this, claiming it's more realistic (and you can't really argue with that).

▲ F-16 Combat Pilot may not be as visually impressive as Falcon but it's got a lot more depth.

▲ About to fire a Sidewinder up the tail-pipe of a MiG-29 Fulcrum (Falcon).

In combat Falcon again scores in presentation - the MiGs are awesome, while ground attacks are met with a stereo roar of a missile launch and flight (even if the missiles are a little slow) and colourful explosions. Another strong point is the intelligence of the MiGs. MiG-21s aren't too much of a problem on the higher levels, provided you intercept them at a distance and know their limitations. But all your hard earned tactical experience is thrown out the window when you tackle MiG-29s. Not only are they incredibly adept at close quarter manoeuvres but also extremely accurate with cannon fire.

Combat Pilot ground attacks are met with a dull roar and speedily accelerating missiles. Cannon fire is precise, unlike Falcon. Randomly placed pylons, trees and bushes missing from Falcon appear here to good effect. Flying over enemy installations with flak bursting all around is pretty hair raising (much more so than in Falcon) even if installations are few and far between. Variety is present within the multitude of different targets but they don't look quite as good as those in Falcon.

Another dubious point is the game's realism when it comes to surface-to-air missiles. If you're detected by radar then you're in for a hard fight as the missiles that follow very rarely miss. If you can see a missile coming you're effectively dead, it's THAT tough! Air-to-air missiles are no less tough, making it extremely hard for you get close to a MiG.

CONCLUSION

Falcon's principal strengths are superb graphic presentation and large number of skill levels. You really do believe you're there fighting for your life, and the rookie level means even arcade fans can have fun. The Mission Disk not only adds more opponents, but a vital overall task which you can keep saving and loading over a couple of weeks. On the debit side this boosts the overall price of Falcon to £45.

At £25 Combat Pilot lacks graphic polish, but makes up for it with a depth of play to rival Elite. Before you can even get into real combat, there's the five training missions to complete. Then there's the strategy of not only planning your own missions, complete with electronic waypoints to keep you on course, but planning the missions of four other F-16s. The size of the map, and your enemy's capabilities are formidable and if you complete it your rank goes up and the enemy attack again. There's also a head-to-head air combat facility if you've two Amigas to link together. Flight sim fans will love this game, but others might find it a bit tough to begin with.

Both programs are undoubtedly very worthy Sizzlers. As for the Mission Disk it provides a significant addition to the basic game which fans of the original mission can't miss. A Sizzler too in fact, albeit overpriced.

STRIDER

4

US Gold, Amiga £19.95

● One small step for man, one giant stride forward for US Gold

It's 2048 and an evil Red Lord has come to power in Eurasia, the massive European and Asian landmass. Only Strider is one game that could never be arcade perfect, not even on the Amiga, but amazingly Tiertex have produced a game which captures the overall feel of the coin-op to a quite startling degree. The graphics are extremely impressive, and most of the arcade enemies are here, giving an astounding variety to both graphics and gameplay. But despite the quality of the presentation, gameplay is not at all sluggish with combat fast and thrilling rather than slow and boring. I must confess to being one of the few people unimpressed by Forgotten Worlds, but with this one there's no doubting US Gold have got it right. Even if you're not usually an arcade fan, check this one out - the SF backgrounds and scenario add more atmosphere to this game than a couple of dozen of your more usual, fantasy coin-ops. All in all, an utterly essential purchase.

▲ The ferocious hammer-and-sickle monster zooms around the perimeter of the playing area.

▲ The evil lord with another inter-level taunt.

one man can defeat him, Strider Hiryu, a super-fit athlete who uses a blindingly fast laser-sword instead of a gun.

Strider starts his mission by hang-gliding into Red Square, ▲ Strider takes on a huge, stomping Tyrannosaurus Rex.

▲ The incredibly athletic hero cartwheels through the air.

Moscow. No sooner than he lands than laser spitting robot insects and Soviet troops are rushing to attack. Some of the flying insects leave containers behind when destroyed, split one open with your laser-sword and a robot will orbit around you; press fire and it throws out a deadly steel ring.

Cut your way through enemy laser cannons, yet more troops and a laser generator to burst into the Supreme Soviet conference room. Kill one man here and all the rest swarm together to form a sickle-headed monster which rapidly crawls around the room after your blood.

Strider starts off with three lives, and three units of energy, but there's a strict time limit to hurry you up. If you complete a level, pictures flash up with your enemies taunting you and the evil lord himself cackles 'You dare fight me?!'. Level two takes place on the icy Russian steps with plenty of wolves eager to sink their fangs into you. Then there's a massive robot gorilla, a power station packed with walking laser cannons, a minefield and helicopters carrying vicious ballerinas.

▲ Hanging on in there.

The next level thankfully takes place in much warmer climes: a jungle populated by boomerang throwing Amazon women, flying piranha and massive dinosaurs. Defeat the Red Lord's forces here and he sends the battleship Ballog against you. This huge warship is weighed down with masses of gun turrets, troops, walkers and lots more beside. But even if you polish this off the Red Lord isn't finished, he has creatures from the third moon to defend him in futuristic fortress. With all the powers of science and military arts behind him, would you dare pit your supreme athleticism and sweeping sword against The Master?

Strider is simply one of the most playable games I've played. It simply oozes class with its wonderful front end, intermission screens, superbly crisp samples and a superlative level of gameplay. The graphics throughout are great, not quite up to Xenon 2 standard but then these have to scroll in all directions, not just vertically. What's more, you really do believe in the character, the scenario having a great sense of purpose to it with a wonderful atmosphere as a result. Easily the best US Gold game so far and just £20, amazing!

My God this is absolutely fantastic! You can't fail to be impressed by the outstanding coin-op and upon hearing that it was going to be converted my first (printable) words were 'No way!'. I now eat my words with immense satisfaction as Tiertex produce an incredibly close conversion. The freedom of movement is what the coin-op is all about and this comes across perfectly – the dexterity of the Strider leaves you breathless as he leaps and slides through five of the most graphically impressive levels you're likely to see for some time. Other than the odd graphic omission from the coin-op I simply cannot find fault in Strider. Tiertex have achieved the impossible, converting the monster coin-op and making it the best platform game to date.

C64 version reviewed next month hopefully.

update

PRESENTATION 91%

Standard Capcom packaging with a fair-sized poster, plus excellent inter-level scenario screens.

GRAPHICS 96%

The sheer imagination of the coin-op's backgrounds and enemies has been amazingly well replicated.

SOUND 94%

Rousing main tune which varies according to the action. Good FX.

HOOKABILITY 97%

The desire to see yet more of this arcade spectacular is amazingly compelling.

LASTABILITY 95%

It's not that hard to complete, but it's so much fun to play you'll want to come back and the action does wraparound.

OVERALL 96%

A brilliant coin-op conversion crammed full of arcade playability.

Sleeping Gods Lie

Empire, Amiga £24.95

Tessera is a world abandoned by its creator gods to a harsh fate; as famine and plague ravage its people the tyrannical Archmage rules with an iron fist. But you're no insane hero, pitting your puny resources against his legions of Normally this type of deep and involved adventure game is just my cup of tea, especially if it's in a 3-D world vein. Sleeping Gods Lie though is an odd game. The puzzles are in there just waiting to be found and the game has considerable depth but to its detriment there's a heck of a lot of wandering around vast, barren terrain as well. The slow moving pace put me off initially but once I got down to some serious mapping it became quite a compelling adventure romp. The accompanying sound effects are surprisingly poor but the title screen music has a certain charm. Sprite expansion is well implemented but I found the character animation and movement occasionally a bit messy to look at. In short, a little long-winded but enjoyable all the same.

► You can wander around this game till you're old and bent!

► Some nice creatures but the landscapes are pretty barren.

henchmen, you're keeping your head down.

Then there's the knocking at the door, at first you fear the Archmage's troops but once you open it you find a fatally wounded Kobbold – a race of creatures that used to deal with the gods. In the few minutes left of his life he whispers a few, laboured words. The Kobbolds have been trying to wake a sleeping god – N'Gnir – but their attempt to find the necessary device has left many of them dead. The Kobbold passes you this device, an intricate bracelet, and his fever. To wake a god – now that is a quest you wouldn't shirk, would you?

Tessera is divided into eight Kingdoms, each made up of up to six landscapes. As you search for the sleeper you must work out how to move between landscapes and Kingdoms – and once you move to the next Kingdom you can't return. The Kingdoms range from the lakelands of Delanda (beware the ferryman) to the capital city of Morav to the deserts of Sunderabad.

Your perspective of the game is first-person, allowing you to freely explore this 3-D mappable landscape. Objects are picked up by simply walking over them, enemies killed by firing objects at them (weapons include a slingshot and even lightning). You need no other actions to solve the game.

Thankfully for such a massive game there's a good save facility, allowing you make numerous save files.

Well over a year in the writing, Sleeping Gods Lie boasts an immediately impressive graphic style, seeming to offer huge landscapes, lots of creatures and smooth movement. It's a pity getting too close to the sprites show their blocky construction but at distance they're fine. What is more dubious is the uneasy mix of arcade and adventure elements. Constant attack from well-armed enemies is initially exciting, but soon proves a bit irritating with so much else to see and do. The limitation of interaction to just shooting and picking up objects is also disappointing. Still, if you've the time and patience for such a big challenge Sleeping Gods Lie could be just the off-beat kind of hit you want. Less committed adventurers however, are probably best advised to try before buying.

64

There are no plans for a C64 version as yet.

update

PRESENTATION 83%

Free poster, a good save option and an amusingly written game intro.

GRAPHICS 76%

A unique graphic style provides an excellent sense of atmosphere.

SOUND 38%

Spot FX are limited to little more than objects being thrown and the cry of a defeated enemy.

HOOKABILITY 70%

Immediately attractive, but it takes a while to find and solve your first puzzles.

LASTABILITY 82%

94 different landscapes with few clues to the Sleeper's location add up to a lengthy quest.

OVERALL 75%

An intriguing and atmospheric adventure.

MYTH (System 3)

You've read about Tusker this issue, now take a look at what's coming next from the Pinner boys.

Based around the another classic subject of ancient mythology, Myth sees Bob Stevenson and Peter Baron (authors of Io and Salamander) come together for hack-and-slay platform action of ages past.

The plot revolves around the eternal Good versus Evil fight with Dameron (the evil God) sending out his evil hordes to take over the world at different points in time. History will be dramatically changed if this happens so a modern day hero is sent for (complete with Levi 501's and Nikes) to take on the enemy.

A four-load game with three different levels per load Myth sees the hero fighting through the different ages of mythology (Norse, Egyptian, Viking, Greek) with superbly crafted enemies relevant to each period (including Thor, Odin, harpies, Lucifer himself, Achilles, chimeras and far too many more to list in this small space).

Rest assured that the playability of it all is so far looking extremely good with Bob providing a unique graphic style - (take a look at the screenshots to see what I mean). Watch out for the review of this stunning game next month!

▲ Fighting off a Hydra on the Greek level.

▲ Battling ever onward in the searing heat of hell.

▲ Activision's latest Sega coin-op conversion is this wicked looking C64 Altered Beast.

▲ Coming soon from Vivid Image (the team behind the Last Ninja games) is the weird arcade adventure, Hammerfist.
